Murder Conspiracy Alleged In Paving Scandal

CHARGE MOVE TO DRIVE OUT SMALL FIRMS

Illinois State's Attorney Opens Probe of Contractors' Association

Chicago—(AP)—A paving scandal, riddled with charges of extortion and conspiracy to commit murder, today started State's Attorney John A. Swanson on an investigation of the Paving Contractors' Association, James A. McGarry, secretary of the association, a wealthy head of the association company bearing his name was one of six men called to police headquarters for questioning. McGarry was released early today after denying charges of conspiracy to control all paving jobs and to "freeze out" smaller contractors.

The trouble started Monday when three unions employed in completing the outer drive from 38th to 41st streets called on their men. The unions included the laborers, the engineers and the excavating teamsters.

The McGarry and Swanson company, an independent concern, has posted $200,000 bond to guarantee completion of the outer drive by Nov. 2. The walkout, according to charges the state's attorney was sitting today, may have been promoted by a desire to embarrass the McGarry-Swanson company.

Some revelations of that kind were made by James Rowan, a sub-contractor for McGarry-Swanson; and it was Rowan, police said, who told of an intention to "bump off" a labor official who he believed had double-crossed him.

EXTORTION CHARGE

Rowan, Steve Oswald and Daniel McGeehan, the latter known as a business man, were arrested in the afternoon, were arrested in the office of an attorney where it was believed they had gone in an effort at extortion.

"We weren't in the office to extort money from Hayes McKinney, (the attorney)," Rowan was quoted by police as saying. "That's been done already. I hired McGeehan and Oswald to get a man for me. We expected this man—John J. Flynn, business agent of the excavating teamsters' union—to appear at the lawyer's office."

Rowan explained that the strike had affected him, as he had a sub-contract from the McGarry-Swanson company. He said Flynn had promised to "fix it up" for the members of the three unions to return to work provided he were given $200. Rowan said he gave the money to Flynn, but that only the laborers returned to work.

Flynn was located early today at Sawyer, Mich. The state's attorney said an effort would be made to compel his return to Chicago.

Assistant State's Attorney Mueller said today he already had sufficient evidence to warrant conspiracy charges against members of the Paving Contractors' Association which he declared virtually controlled all paving work in the city.

Among those sought for questioning was Patrick H. Moynihan, former chairman of the Illinois Commerce commission.

GANG MURDERS MAN WHO CONVICTED TWO

Suspect Held by California Police in Brutal Slaying for Vengeance

Oakland, Calif.—(AP)—Granville Blair, 41, was arrested here early today and held for Los Angeles police as a suspect in the gang murder in Hollywood last night of David Antink, former chieftain of a chain drug store.

The cold-blooded slaying of Antink was termed by police today as an act of vengeance by one of the most vicious gangs of criminals ever to operate in southern California.

Antink, who six years ago was the victim of a $38,000 holdup and who was instrumental in convicting two of the robbers was shot down last night within 50 yards of his home. Three men, who had been lying in wait for him in a closed automobile, first telled him with a blackjack and then whipped out their guns to finish the job while at least four passersby looked on, horrified.

Police flashed an alarm for the apprehension of Blair, who was convicted on Antink's testimony in the robbery on May 21, 1923, and Morris Moll, 29, known to police throughout the country as "the Phantom Gunman." Moll was identified by Antink in St. Paul, Minn., last spring as a member of the holdup gang.

Blair was sentenced for life, but was paroled from San Quentin last February, and had been living in Long Beach, police said. They were unable to account for Moll's presence, and did not reveal whether the third assailant had been identified.

Elmer Dowdy, alias "The Panama Kid," underworld character, is serving a term in Folsom penitentiary for his part in the holdup, having been identified by Antink in Jacksonville, Fla.

PICK DELEGATES FOR CONVENTION OF CLUB

Mrs. Mabel Shannon and Mrs. H. L. Davis will attend the annual state convention of the state federation of women's clubs at Kenosha Oct. 8, 9 and 10. The Appleton club is entitled to four delegates and as many visitors as it wishes to send.

The next two club members who qualify an intention of attending the convention will be named as of Oct. 10.

FARM MEMBER DOES HIS BIT FOR TOBACCO GROWERS

Washington—(AP)—James C. Stone of Kentucky, who represents tobacco on the federal farm board calculates that even if a person smokes a package of cigarettes daily it would take 42 years for that individual to consume a single hoghead of the raw product.

He told the senate agriculture committee that a package a day was his own quota. While that might seem a lot of cigarettes, he felt he had to do his share "to keep the industry going."

"Even so that," put in Senator Smith, a Democrat from the tobacco growing state of South Carolina, "you don't do as well as the flappers."

for the most part out of all discussion of the mission, whose aims have the approval of the great bulk of the nation, irrespective of party political opinions.

An air of suppressed excitement pervaded the prime minister's household at No. 10 Downing-st yesterday in anticipation of the journey which for at least two has much of the character of an adventure. These are Miss Isabel, the premier's daughter, and Miss Rose Rosenberg, his personal secretary. The two women have been much together the last few days sharing preparations for the journey.

Isabel admitted to her municipal constituents in popular that she was "terribly excited" about the trip. "Natural Scottish reserve and experience as head of the prime-minister's household combine to cloak any exuberance she may feel. Also there is the serious appreciation of the object of the visit and the hope that she may be able to some extent to contribute to its success."

The deep feeling MacDonald himself holds regarding his American mission was indicated by the message he gave the Laborite "Daily Herald" on the eve of his departure from England.

PREMIER'S STATEMENT

"The greatest contribution this generation can make to the history of the world is to establish peace among nations and induce the peace of security by political agreements carried out by judicial means," said the message.

"The United States and ourselves, having the same jobs in view, should proclaim them with a united voice. Good and cordial relations between us two can change the outlook for peace and give the world an energetic faith, instead of a hesitating scepticism."

"I go away to see what can be done. I have the help of my colleagues in the Labor movement and of every influence making for peace. Who dares say the success is impossible?"

The prime minister spent last night at No. 10 Downing-st holding an informal reception attended by ministers and parliamentarians, especially those closely interested in the outcome of his mission. During the prime minister's absence Philip Snowden, chancellor of the exchequer, will act as premier and leader of the Labor party in the house of commons.

CAR TRIES TO RUN DOWN COP—OCCUPANT KILLED

Scranton, Pa.—(AP)—Peter Wetter, 40, of Scranton, was shot and killed today by motorcycle Patrolman Joseph Scheidele when the driver of the car in which Wetter was riding turned out the lights and attempted to run down the policeman.

The patrolman, in company with Lieutenant Schull, had gone to a residential block because of a complaint that suspicious characters were loitering about the neighborhood. They saw two women jump from a passing car and a third woman lying in the street screaming. The patrolman flashed a signal for the driver of the car to stop and instead the driver turned out the lights of his car and sped toward the patrolmen. Avoiding a collision the officer fired at the fleeing motorist, who escaped.

Later a motorist named Ted Simon took to city hospital a man with a bullet wound in the head who had died. The man was Wetter.

Simon was apprehended and identified as the driver of the death car.

JANESVILLE COMPANY GETS NEW CHURCH JOB

The Johnston-Ransley Construction company of this city submitted the lowest bid on the new Trinity Episcopal church and rectory at Janesville, but the contract was awarded to the J. P. Cullen Construction company of Janesville. The local company submitted the low bid of $59,762, while the Janesville concern submitted the second lowest figure of $59,870. The new church and rectory was designed by Smith and Brandt, local architects.

8 COUNTIES STILL UNDER QUARANTINE

Madison—(AP)—Although little attention is being paid to the rabies infection that swept several counties in the state this summer, there are still eight counties under quarantine and the state department of agriculture and markets, veterinary division, is cautioning dog owners to keep watch over their animals and cooperate in these counties in controlling the infection. Dates of expiration of the quarantine are: Oconto, Oct. 6; Crawford, Oct. 9; Iron, Oct. 24; Waukesha, Nov. 2; Vernon, Nov. 21; Bayfield, Nov. 23; Lincoln, Nov. 24; Racine, Dec. 14.

COTTON GROWERS, CONSUMERS WORRY OVER CROP YIELD

Government Reports and Private Investigators Differ on Estimates

BY J. C. ROYLE
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press

New York—Growers and consumers alike are likely to feel and express keen resentment over the forthcoming report on the government cotton estimate, scheduled for Oct. 7. Authoritative reports from each end of the cotton industry made this plain today.

Good manufacturers, while they have increased production this year, have had splendid sales and this has enabled them to keep production within reach of consumption and to reduce burdensome stocks. They anticipate a still further and more extensive demand, since the style trend is distinctly favorable to them. But on the strength of the government prediction of 14,825,000 bales as of Sept. 1, they have been holding off from buying raw staple to fill the requirements for this increased demand in expectation of a possible reduction in price levels of cotton.

Now they are becoming exercised as to the reliability of the government estimate in view of the alarming reports of deterioration and weevil damage which have come from private sources.

"They are in a position where an advance in goods prices might well cause a buyer resistance most difficult to overcome. And if raw cotton advances, their margins at present cotton prices may easily be cut to the vanishing point."

HOLD ESTIMATE TOO HIGH

The planters and businessmen of the south who have been instrumental in financing the 1929 crop feel that the last government estimate was too high. As in times past, the whole question of the reliability of government reports hinges on the "pars" used in the crop reporting board's calculations.

The government's early crop predictions are based on a mathematical formula which varies from month to month and year to year. This formula or "par" as it is known, was originally based on 5 or 10 year averages. But since the advent of the weevil, it has had to be modified during years of excessive weevil infestation. In 1927, the board deducted 8 pounds from the average yield per acre for 10 years. In 1928, 18 pounds were deducted in arriving at the September 1 figures. This year but 3 pounds were deducted for weevil and other unfavorable reasons, although weevil infestation has been reported heavy from private sources and some sections have suffered severe drought. The "par" used this year was 275 pounds per acre as compared with 255 last year and 266 in 1927.

Some of the most eminent private statisticians and forecasters feel that

Lindy Rests At Halfway Point Of Trail-Blazing

Maracay, Venezuela—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, explorer of aerial highways, rested today at his halfway point in his trail-blazing 7,000 mile air mail tour of the West Indies, Latin America and Mexico.

He was not idle during his stopover of the flight over the northern coast of South America from Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana, to Cristobal, Canal Zone, first leg of his home-bound journey. He made his plans for a survey tomorrow of a new Venezuelan air mail route, sponsored by Pan-American Airways, as is his present 7,000 mile tour.

Cooperating with Colonel Lindbergh in the preparations for the air the following of such a formula indicates the board is making an attempt to anticipate the effect of favorable developments in weevil and weather conditions. It is to be noted that the report is not issued until a week or more after the first of the month.

The mid-September reports received by private reporting agencies indicate a larger deterioration than usual. One of the best informed and most reliable private experts said today: "Studies of the probable formula for predicting the yield this year convince me its estimate of 14,825,000 bales is inflated from 300,000 to 500,000 bales over what it should be, if the government condition figures of 55.4 accurately reflect the condition of the crop."

Prof. John A. Todd of Liverpool, in a review of the world situation, declares: "A higher yield per acre through better farming and the control of the weevil (it is perfectly clear the weevil can be kept under control if proper measures are taken) would enable the American cotton growers to make a decent living out of cotton, which many are not now doing. But a greater yield per acre does not necessarily mean larger total crops. That will come as world consumption increases, but meantime a bumper crop means only ruinous prices."

"The first essential is that much present cotton acreage should be thrown out of cotton cultivation altogether, since much land is now unutilized to grow cotton under present labor or costs due to low yield per acre. Increase in world consumption of cotton involves a moderate price level obtainable only by checking high cost of production. The world will take for many years all the cotton it can get at a price, but it must be good cotton and at a reasonable price."

DERRICK ON BRIDGE IS DAMAGED BY TRUCK

The derrick on the Oneida-st bridge under repair by the city, was pulled down Thursday morning when a Wisconsin Michigan Power company bus going north struck the guy wire. The mast of the derrick was broken.

mail route survey was Juan T. Trippe, president of Pan-American Airways and a passenger on the Caribbean circle tour. Mrs. Lindbergh and Mrs. Trippe, also passengers on the lengthy flight, devoted the day to resting and sightseeing in this Venezuelan town.

Colonel Lindbergh flew here yesterday over the 415-mile coast line between Port of Spain, Trinidad, through clear weather which contrasted with the squalls which failed to hinder his progress Wednesday from Paramaribo to the Trinidad city.

Enroute, the colonel complacently climbed over the bow of the big amphibian to make photographs from the anchor compartment of the territory over which the plane passed. Another feature of the day's flight was Lindbergh's aerial salute to Caracas, Venezuelan capital, and to President Gomez, who has requested that America's famous transatlantic flier circle over the city.

The colonel's schedule tomorrow calls for a 7 o'clock departure on the 177-mile hop to Curacao, Dutch West Indies.

Thence he will fly to Maracaibo, 225 miles, where the party expects to have lunch. The last stop of the day will be made at Barranquilla, Columbia, where the plane is expected to arrive at 2:30.

The flier will conclude his tour over the South American coast Sunday as he flies to Cristobal, Canal Zone, where a nine day stopover will be made before the last leg of the homebound journey to Miami is undertaken.

RESTRICT ACTIVITIES OF AIR CORPS UNITS

Washington—(AP)—The war department has issued regulations restricting participation by the army air corps in local celebrations because of the constant drain on personnel and equipment.

The policy is similar to that adopted by the navy a year ago. Under the new regulations, participation will be authorized only on holidays by the war department, but in no place where other participants put on exhibitions on wing walking, trapeze work and changing from one plane to another in the air.

Sponsors of celebrations hereafter will be required to pay the personal expenses of the army aviators, furnish suitable motor fuel, and guard and store the aircraft properly, and provide insurance amounting to $50,000 for public liability and $25,000 for property damage.

The corps also will not take part in a dedication of an airport in a community where it has previously participated.

Remodel Home

Victor Schroeder, route 3, Appleton, has started remodeling the residence on his farm. The building also is being redecorated. The work will take several weeks.

PLANE TAKES OFF WITHOUT AIRMAN AND LANDS AGAIN

Havre, Mont.—(AP)—A small monoplane, which took off without a pilot, flew five miles and broke into a propeller in landing. It was the chief topic of conversation among attaches of the Havre airport.

Clarence Hendrickson, student pilot, had some trouble starting the motor of the ship. He opened the throttle slightly spun the prop, and the plane started down the field. Hendrickson dashed for the cabin and in attempting to close the throttle opened it wider. The plane darted away, leaving the pilot sprawled on the ground.

The small craft, airport attaches said, gained altitude, flew at least five miles making several graceful banks, and landed in an open space adjacent to the airport.

The monoplane is in service again with a shining new prop, the only evidence of the unauthorized flight.

FINISHES REARRANGING HISTORIC EAST ROOM

Washington—(AP)—The Hoover rearrangement of White House portraits, which have been in progress for several weeks, has reached the historic east room.

Full length paintings of George and Martha Washington, brought from a lower corridor, were hung Friday in the room to which tourists from the four corners of the country daily troop on sightseeing schedule.

"Looking down graciously and benignly from the east wall, the pictured George and Martha offer silent welcome to the rich old room. The crystal chandeliers have just had their annual cleaning and sparkle an added greeting."

Mrs. Hoover has been grouping White House belongings according to periods. The portrait of George Washington is one saved by Mrs. Madison at the time the White House was burned in 1814 and she moved with her husband temporarily into Octagon house. The portrait of Martha Washington is of later date.

Official guides, untroubled about the change, did not tell their first groups of tourists to take note of the pictures. The visitors sent into the east room with instructions to look at the gold piano. They came out commenting on the portraits, the first president and his wife unquestionably dominating the room as it is now arranged.

Outlines Plans For Gigantic U. S. Livestock Co-Op

DENHAM TELLS OF PROGRAM MAPPED OUT

Hope All Livestock Breeders Will Help Control Surpluses in Nation

Washington—(AP)—Organization of a gigantic national cooperative marketing corporation for livestock is contemplated by the federal farm board, C. B. Denham, one of its members, testified today before the senate agriculture committee.

Denham represents livestock on the board. He said it was the intention of the board to help the organization and financing of such an organization as it also would be of assistance in disposing of surpluses if they should occur.

Relating plans to form the livestock marketing agency, Denham said it was the hope of the board that all livestock breeders "from California to the corn belt," will participate in the formation of the organization.

"It is our intention to help them do that," he added, "and to finance them in conducting their undertaking."

After Denham concluded, the committee recessed until Monday.

DELAY HEARING

The committee had arranged to hear Carl Williams of Oklahoma, but the latter was asked to wait a day so Senator Smith, Democrat, South Carolina, might question him. Smith said word it would be impossible for him to attend today's session.

The committee is considering the nominations of all board members who have served under recess appointments throughout the summer.

Charles Wilson of New York, has been nominated for a four year term.

Speaking of his qualifications for the post he said, he had operated farms on which apples, some corn, oats and other crops used primarily for certified seed were grown but he had no exporting or warehousing interests.

Under questioning by Chairman McNary of the committee, he testified he had no direct information of the problems confronting the apple growers of the northwest.

McNary recalled that Senator Copeland, Democrat, New York, had made a determined effort to exclude fruits and vegetables from the farm bill. Wilson said so far as he knows the apple growers favored the measure.

"We have had no requests for one," Wilson replied.

"Are the apple growers against a stabilization program," McNary queried.

"My general impression is that the apple growers of New York are in favor of this bill," was the answer.

ASKED ABOUT PLANS

Senator Caraway, Democrat, Arkansas, took up the questioning, asking the witness what the board was doing to determine what type of farm relief he favors.

"We are trying to carry out the terms of the bill," Wilson said.

"Now just what is that," Caraway pursued. "I suppose every senator on this committee has had piles of telegrams expressing impatience with that board and I am trying to find out what you are doing."

"We are meeting each situation as it arises," Wilson asserted.

"What situations have you met?"

"Well, we are working on the wheat situation and on a national potato program."

Wilson added that the board had called the wheat interests together and invited them to form a national marketing organization.

"And that's all you've done," Caraway observed, terminating the examination.

Senator Wheeler, Democrat, Montana, asked Wilson about his national agricultural viewpoint.

"You know nothing about farm conditions in the middle west?" Wheeler asked.

"I know less about them than I do in my own territory," the witness responded.

PILOTLESS AIRPLANE

CRASHES IN ONTARIO

Riverside, Ontario—(AP)—An air plane without a pilot crashed in a field near Riverside at 7:30 last night. No pilot was found and police believe he may have been thrown out or jumped with a parachute into the Detroit river. The plane fell from that direction.

Residents of Riverside said they heard the plane flying low overhead, the engine backfiring and missing. A short time later the crash occurred.

The plane is believed of Canadian ownership. The only crew was a note found in the cockpit which read:

"This plane belongs to Ray Anderson and has been passed by the airport. It is held here for sale. Ray Anderson."

Police found that Anderson flew the plane from Toronto several days ago and left it in Riverside in charge of Robert Peel. Peel said the plane was stolen from the field yesterday afternoon.

Lindbergh Prepares To Lead Air Party In Exploration Of Mayan Cities

BY CECIL E. DICKSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

Washington—(AP)—Once more Charles A. Lindbergh is to fulfill the idea of America's noblest bird, the eagle.

Flying high above the jungles of Central America, seat of the continent's highest ancient civilization, he will hover, dip and dart away, studying from aloft the splendid ruins of vanished Maya cities.

Undoubtedly, Dr. John R. Merriam, president of Carnegie Institution of Washington, predicts, he will find, lost in uncharted masses of dense forest and tropical tangle, hitherto unknown cities that were built before Christ, flourished in his time, and vanished beneath the green shroud of nature long before white man's discovery of the New World.

Lured by curiosity aroused when he found a deserted city in the Yucatan, Lindbergh will lead an expedition sponsored by the Carnegie Institution of Washington and the Pan-American Airways, Inc., of New York, into regions not yet penetrated by white man.

Flights will be made over vast areas of strange territory in the Mexican provinces of Yucatan and Quintana Roo, and in Guatemala, Honduras and British Honduras.

Accompanied by Dr. Oliver Ricketson, Carnegie Institution authority of Maya archeology and discoverer of many ruins, he will take bearings of known jungle cities. From them they will chart a course into unexplored territory so that cities discovered from the air may be found later by land parties without blind searching.

Aerial photographs will be taken of the ruins of temples and pyramids that graced once proud and wealthy cities, to determine how much of the plan and extent of ancient communities can be made out from the air.

The sponsors hope the expedition will reveal the mystery that clothes the means of inter-city communication 2,000 years ago by the discovery of an ancient highway believed to lie in the depths of obliterating growth tangle. Also, the sources of the water supply for the great populations that once inhabited the cities will be sought.

Belize, British Honduras, will be a base of operations for the expedition, which will get underway as soon as Lindbergh completes his present South American flight.

It was while flying from Belize in February that Lindbergh flew over Yucatan and observed what appeared to be two emerald eyes staring upward from the bush. Swooping earthward he found the ruins of a city of untold age, beaten down and time.

Near a strange temple that reared its broken head above neighboring pyramids, were two pools of green water gleaming from white basins built centuries ago.

Lindbergh told Carnegie officials of his find and expressed a desire to visit the strange city again, as well as his belief that the airplanes could be used for exploration purposes.

Experiments conducted in New Mexico last summer, in photographing prehistoric Indian pueblos were satisfactory, the Central American expedition was arranged.

Should a forced landing in the tangle be necessary, Lindbergh and his companions might not emerge for weeks, if at all. Scientists have been known to pass within a few yards of a jungle engulfed city without seeing it because of the dense vegetation. Drinkable water is scarce in many known regions there and archeologists believe the same conditions exist in the uncharted areas.

Legislation which will be discussed at the national convention of the American Legion next week at Louisville, Ky., was discussed by members of the national council at a meeting Thursday night at New London.

A dinner at Cozy Inn preceded the meeting. All posts were represented except Kaukauna.

Dedication of Whiting airport at Appleton which has been discussed by the veterans several times again was brought before the meeting but did not come up for action.

The veterans also decided to postpone activity on a membership campaign until next month. On Oct. 11, a meeting to formulate preliminary plans will be held at the Hantschel cottage on Lake Winnebago and final plans will be made at the regular monthly meeting of the council Oct. 31 at Seymour.

GENERAL WEATHER

The pressure still remains high over the New England states, bringing fair weather to the north Atlantic states and the St. Lawrence Valley. Low pressure over the western states has caused cloudy, unsettled weather, with scattered showers in the upper Missouri and Mississippi Valley, the last region and the Ohio Valley. Continued fair weather prevails over the west gulf states and from the Rocky Mountains westward. Cloudy, unsettled weather, with probable showers is expected in this section tonight and Saturday, with little change in temperature.

CHARGE MILWAUKEE MAN TOOK PART IN THREE BURGLARIES

Roy Bentley Is Held for Trial Despite Denials of Guilt

Despite his denials of complicity in three Calumet and Manitowoc burglaries, Roy Bentley, 64, Milwaukee, was bound over for trial on a charge of committing burglary at Kiel, following his arraignment in municipal court at Manitowoc Thursday afternoon.

Bentley's trial is set for Oct. 2. He was unable to furnish $5,000 bonds and is being held in the Manitowoc jail.

Under questioning for more than 15 hours Wednesday at Chilton Bentley maintained his innocence. He testified he was one of two men who Tuesday night and Wednesday morning broke into the lumber company offices in Chilton and New Holstein and a filling station at Kiel. At the latter two places more than $75 in cash was taken.

During the questioning Fred M. Schlaak, undersheriff of Manitowoc, found a hacksaw blade in the lining of Bentley's coat. This discovery led to the arrest of Bentley and the officers found $80 Bentley's assertion that he had but $50. A $20 bill was found in his shoe and by a large hole in the note it was identified as one taken from the safe of A. A. Laun Lumber company in New Holstein.

Bentley was arrested in Kiel early Wednesday morning when he reported to police that he had been held up by two men near Chilton and his automobile taken. This was soon after the Kiel marshal had surprised two burglars who were looting the safe at the Stecker filling station.

One of the burglars ran out of a rear door of the filling station, while the other ran toward the station house and turned and ran in the same direction his companion had taken. The marshal and his aids identified Bentley as being the man who had fled from them. The police shot at the fleeing burglars and they are reported to have returned the fire.

The burglars abandoned their automobile and while the search for them was under way, a man met police and told them he had been held up and his car stolen. He saw the car at the Stecker filling station and claimed that it was his. Police immediately arrested him. He seemed quite indignant and vigorously protested being searched.

The offices of the Chilton Mill Works, the A. A. Laun Lumber and Fuel company at New Holstein and the Stecker filling station were all burglarized the same night. The burglars obtained approximately $80 in cash from the Laun safe. $40 in all three places were smashed with a heavy sledge hammer.

County Medical Society

Meets Thursday at Riverview Sanatorium

Pointing out that there are 350 known cases of tuberculosis in Outagamie county and probably many more of the early stages, Dr. C. C. Boyd of Riverview sanatorium discussed the early symptoms of the disease at a meeting of the Outagamie County Medical society at Riverview Thursday evening.

Dr. Boyd devoted some time to a description of the new addition to the sanatorium and the advantages it will provide. The capacity of the hospital, which now takes care of 60 patients, will be more than doubled, and the sanatorium will be supplied with its own X-ray equipment and additional space for occupational training.

Dr. J. T. Pleyte of the Wisconsin Anti-tuberculosis association told about the early diagnosis of tuberculosis in children, explaining that of ten cases are found in children who show no other signs of the disease, but who have had contact with persons infected with the disease. This diagnosis is made through skin tests and X-ray.

Dr. E. F. McGrath concluded the program with an explanation of the X-ray diagnosis of tuberculosis in children.

Dr. Victor F. Marshall submitted a report on the state medical convention in Madison early in September.

A ball game preceded the dinner given by Dr. C. C. Boyd and other officials of Riverview.

$14,106 ADDED TO

VOCATIONAL FUND

A total of $14,106.75 was placed in the vocational school fund Friday upon the receipts of both the federal and state vocational school funds by E. E. Bachman, city treasurer.

In conference with the Smith-Hughes act, which reimburses the city for the expenditure of certain moneys by the vocational school, the Appleton portion of federal aid was $3,225.28, and the state aid $10,881.47.

Last year $10,950.70 was received from the state and federal aid amounted to $3,697.07.

BISHOP SEES JAZZ MUSIC AS DEFINITE HELP TO CHURCHES

Marquette, Me.—(AP)—Jazz music with some of its new tendencies is seen as an aid to the church by Bishop E. L. Waldorf of the Kansas City diocese of the Methodist Episcopal church.

"Jazz reigns in 10,000 halls in this country where no preacher will ever be heard," he said in an address before the St. Louis conference of the church here. "It reaches probably six millions of people that the church will not affect. So it is that song which will encourage smiling in the face of difficulty, have a great opportunity for good."

"It may be," he continued, "that the lines about 'Mary and Me, the Baby Makes Three,' have had a part indirectly in discouraging companionate marriage."

2 ATLANTIC STATES

EXPECT HARD FIGHTS

OVER SENATE SEATS

Others Also Are Giving Republicans Much Concern for Next Election

Washington—(AP)—Political situations developing in the forthcoming senatorial contests in two Atlantic coast and a like number of nearby "border" states are giving Republican leaders here as much concern as are those in some of the New England commonwealths.

A bitter internal strife is brewing in New Jersey, with formidable Democratic opposition to a possibility in the 1930 general elections, while the G. O. P. leaders expect a real contest in Delaware, where former Senator Thomas F. Bayard, Democrat, will oppose Senator Daniel O. Hastings.

With a party fight looming in Kentucky, some of the Republican chiefs make no effort to conceal their anxiety about the outcome there. They also are far from sanguine about the West Virginia outlook, as former Senator M. M. Neely, Democrat, will seek to defeat Senator Guy D. Goff, Republican.

The removal of Senator Walter F. Edge from the domestic political arena to the ambassadorial post at Fairfax, Virginia, the way for a fairly general scramble for the Republican senatorial nomination in New Jersey. Former Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen already is in the field; Franklin W. Ford, member of congress and secretary of the republican national committee, is considering his candidacy, as is former Gov. Edward C. Stokes.

BAIRD CANDIDATE

David Baird, Jr., who is expected to be appointed to fill out the unexpired term of Senator Edge when he resigns late this year to go to Paris, undoubtedly will be a candidate for the party nomination to succeed himself. The Democrats have yet to bring out a candidate, but in the minority party councils there is some talk of former Governor Moore entering the field.

Representative John M. Robinson may get into the Kentucky Republican primary against Senator Frederic M. Sackett. They long have been political enemies and some of the party leaders here hold that a bitter contest between them such as might be expected would lessen chances of victory in the general election.

Judge M. M. Logan of the Kentucky State Supreme court, and former Senator Stanley, are being discussed as possible Democratic candidates in the contest against the winner in the Republican primary race.

Neely already is active in the effort to regain a place in the senate. He was defeated last November in the Hoover landslide by only a few thousand votes, and Democratic leaders here are confident that he will make a strong race with the result rather in doubt.

INTO HORTONVILLE STORE

Crashing into a bay window in the Dabeneier store at Hortonville at about 11 o'clock Friday morning, Mrs. Earl Richardson Rome, was arrested by Sheriff Fred Glece and Charles Stalid, county motorcycle officer. She was to be arraigned in municipal court before Judge Theodore Berg Friday afternoon, charged with reckless driving.

Arriving in Hortonville on her way to Rhinelander with her husband, Mrs. Richardson, who was driving, lost control of the machine. The car careened off the roadway and ran directly into the store window.

MARINE ACT PROVES BIG SHIPPING AID

Extensive Results Already Shown Despite Less Than Year's Action

Washington—(AP)—The government's effort to build up and restore the prestige of the American Merchant marine through the operation of the Jones-White act is already bringing extensive results, although the quarter billion construction loan fund it set up has been available for only a short time.

Less than a year has passed since the first loan was made, but the shipping board already has apportioned nearly one-sixth of the fund to make possible the construction of modern passenger and cargo vessels. A much greater demand for construction funds is expected by the board as soon as difficulties growing out of obsolescence in the act's language in regard to mail contracts are adjusted.

The construction plans of the United States Lines, Inc., operators of the Leviathan, call for the early building of two $50,000,000 "super-Leviathans"—ships which it is hoped will challenge the present supremacy of the German liners.

Two cabin ships that will cost of seven or eight millions each.

The dollar lines, which have just received more than $10,000,000 for the construction of two fast combination passenger-cargo ships, contemplate the construction of five more similar ships, and the Matson Navigation company wants to build three speedy passenger liners for the Pacific route to Manila.

These ships alone, if approved by the board, would involve construction loans of more than $30,000,000.

The United States Lines, have announced that they eventually expect to build still more ships, and other applicants are in the office.

Many of the companies, however, have indicated that they have no definite plans to build new ships unless the full amount offered by mail contracts payable on a mileage basis is forthcoming. Mail contracts were given to shipping board vessels, and the purchasers of government ships insist that congress intended that they should receive the postal aid. The act, however, provides that the contracts shall be let on a day bid basis, so that in most cases operators of ships purchased from the government have received them. A commission appointed by President Hoover to study the matter has asked that congress clarify its intent.

The loans so far approved by the board, amounting to about $40,000,000 will furnish three-quarters of the construction cost of 18 ships. The two dollar line ships will go into the round-the-world service; the Ward line is building two fast passenger boats for the New York to Havana run; the Panama Pacific has virtually completely the "Pennsylvania" for the New York to San Francisco trip; the Grace line obtained funds for an $18,000 gross ton passenger-cargo liner which will ply from New York to the west coast of South America; the American Export line is building four passenger-cargo ships for the New York to Mediterranean ports trade. The balance are cargo ships for service to Africa and other distant lands.

It is expected a large delegation of local people will attend the annual district conference of the Fraternal Order of Eagles at Armory E, Fond du Lac, Sunday. Delegations are expected from Appleton, Beaver Dam, Beloit, Janesville, Port Johnson, Green Bay, Hartford, Hortonville, Kaukauna, Kaukauna, Crossville, Madison, Manitowoc, Menasha, Milwaukee, Neenah, Oconomowoc, Oshkosh, Plymouth, Ripon, Sheboygan, Waubesa and Waupun.

A parade, probably the largest every staged by the order, will be held in connection with the conference. Thus far four town squares and one hundred have definitely announced their intention of participating in the parade. The local drum corps will probably take part in the parade.

The conference will be called to order at 10 o'clock Sunday morning by E. J. Sweeney, general chairman.

Each of the aerics is expected to send one or more candidates for the initiation in addition to a class of 100. Fond du Lac is expected to send 100. Degree work will be exemplified by the Oshkosh team, which won first place at the national convention at Minneapolis in August.

RED COB TRADITION PROVIDES MUCH FUN AT HUSKING "BEE"

Observing an old tradition, which permits a man to kiss any woman who finds a red cob at a husking bee, about 25 guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Bohm, 415 E. Wisconsin, Friday enjoyed an "old time husking bee" party.

Attendees at the party said that "red" cobs were many and the "fun" lasted for two hours while more than 225 bushels of corn were husked.

One man, who hit on the scheme of finding the same red cob over and over, thus winning the right to kiss any woman at the party, was caught in the act by the women and smothered in a pile of corn husks when the wrath of the females turned against him. His name is not definitely known but rumor has it that he was Robert Rohm.

Elaborate Program Planned in Connection With New Membership Basis

In connection with the new membership plans for youngsters who join the Y. M. C. A. this fall, a vigorous program of social, athletic and spiritual activities is being arranged by S. C. Bailey, boys' work secretary of the Y. M. C. A., with the aid of the boys' work committee.

Pioneer club activities as well as those of the H-Y and Sophomore Tri-anglo clubs will be one of the features. Club leaders are now planning programs. Other clubs for youngsters interested in stamp collection, radio, archery, carpentry, leather work and model airplane construction will be organized if enough boys enroll.

More tournaments will be scheduled this winter for boys interested in athletics. Basketball tournaments will be staged weekly and arrangements are being completed by A. P. Jensen, physical director. There also will be several swimming tournaments this winter and life saving activities will be promoted.

Special periods for Bible study will be set aside each week for those interested in the spiritual program of the organization. There will be special classes organized, with weekly discussion periods.

LEGION POST FAILS

TO CONDEMN DRY MEN

Wausau—(AP)—Officially, the Wausau post of the American legion will have nothing to do with the squabble about prohibitionists using legion membership cards as approaches to make "buys." It was decided last night. During the state convention at Kenosha, an agent was said to have used a membership card to aid him in making a "buy." A resolution condemning the use of membership cards by legionnaires to further their own ends was tabled.

WINTER LINGERIE EVEN LIGHTER NOW

New Import Garment Shows Combined Vest and Drawers

BY AILEEN LAMONT
Copyright, 1929, By Cons. Press
New York — The cold weather has had little effect on the materials for lingerie except to make the latter lighter. One of the newest imported garments is a chemise culotte, or combined vest and drawers, of pink voile trimmed with small tucks and with the panties largely composed of lace in big openwork patterns. The modern lingerie must not bulge or wrinkle at the waist line and must have a fullness below the point corresponding with the fullness of the outer skirts.

Gold lace may do for shoulder straps for the army and navy but the newest shoulder straps for women's evening dresses are of flowers. Or at least one shoulder strap may be of that character. These adornments are used usually on the black crepe satin frocks. A garland of small artificial flowers is posed over the left shoulder and across the front and back of the dress following the decollete line to the right hip. This is the sole trimming of the simple frock.

Gray ensembles for bright autumn days are becoming more and more popular. Crepe georgette is the material most frequently used for these costumes. The dress is of the one piece type with narrow sleeves a semi-fitted bodice gathered by a narrow belt at the waist line and a skirt pleated in panels. Over this is worn a three-quarters grey crepe coat trimmed with gray fox. The silver dog collar and portrait locket of grandmother's day is being revived in jewelry fashions. The longer and more feminine skirts now used are held responsible for the revival. The smartest of the lockets are small and quite plain except for a chased border.

PROPOSE AIR LINES FOR AIR MAIL ONLY

System Would Save Many Hours in Transportation Between Coasts, Claim

A system of air lines to transport air mail exclusively and thereby save many hours in the transportation of this kind of mail between the Atlantic and Pacific seaboard has been suggested to the Post Office Department, it was stated orally in Washington.

The suggestion was made as a part of the program which is to be discussed with air mail contractors, who have been summoned to Washington on Sept. 30 for a general downward revision of their compensation for the transportation of air mail.

It was said that the Postmaster General, Walter F. Brown, has given this phase of the subject some consideration. Mr. Brown, it is reported, feels that the present contracts for carrying air mail should be supplanted by new ones that would call for the exclusive delivery of air mail.

The contractors in a great many cases operate a combination mail, express and passenger business and, according to reports to the Department, have made air transportation a profitable business, it was declared.

With the conference with the contractors a week off, postal air mail officials are reluctant to discuss their program in detail. The Second Assistant Postmaster General, W. Irving Glover, in charge of the air mail service, has announced that in order to carry out all of the plans for expanding the present air mail system it would be necessary to save some $3,000,000 of the current appropriation for carrying air mail.

Whether the Department will seek a new arrangement by which the contractors will carry air mail exclusively is to be worked out by the Postmaster General, who, it was said, is in sympathy with those who are seeking new air mail connections in the South.

It is known that cost ascertainment study has been made for the transportation of air mail. Results of this study have not been made public, but, according to Mr. Glover, the Department is bent on reaching a new financial arrangement with the contractors.

Students At Sheboygan Buy "Window" Insurance

Sheboygan — Boys and girls at Lincoln school here play baseball and other games that involve the horrible possibility of broken glasses without the least fear of that catastrophe to the small pocketbooks. They have organized what their teacher calls an "illuminating insurance company."

She calls it that, Elva W. Seidenman, vice principal at the school said today because it is insurance on the illuminating glass and because the experience is illuminating to the children on the matters of care of money, sense of values and exercise of judgment.

The name of the company is the Lincoln School Window Glass Casualty company.

Studying insurance, last winter, the eighth grade class sought some field in which its studies could be carried out practically. The teacher suggested a miniature insurance company. But it was winter and the activities of the children was not so stimulated that they thought of anything insurable around the school. Then came last March with ideal baseball weather. They conceived the idea of insuring the windows against breakage.

The premium for each policy holder is ten cents. The policy covers breakage in nearby buildings and passing cars. Obligation of the company is cancelled with the insured when he or she breaks a window—thus the breakage is cut down in spite of youth's tendency to be careless when protection is certain. Failure to report breakage immediately and acknowledge guilt of same also cancels policy. The "company" adjusters are empowered to settle whether cracks in a window are sufficient size to warrant replacement. Pupils do not have to interrupt the ball game in progress to report damage, but must report immediately thereafter.

Turkey plans to greatly increase its educational facilities.

SOFT FOR THE UTILITIES

Seldom does a week pass by without an announcement such as this taken from an Associated Press dispatch: "A rich melon crop is being contemplated by stockholders of five of the largest Insull public utility corporations; between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000 in rights will be scattered among the stockholders." These "rights" passed on to the stockholders are based upon the theory that the property of the corporation has increased that much in value and while such "rights" are affected by that very uncertain equation known as the stock market where prices are often fictitiously maintained, yet the public would not take these "rights", paying handsome profits to the stockholders of the public utilities, unless convinced that a real and genuine value existed, or at least that the profits of the utility were sufficient to pay dividends on the increased value.

Public utility profits have gone up lately due to a variety of reasons, probably the most important factor being the greatly increased demand for gas and electricity. But many states, like Wisconsin, have laws to the effect that public utility rates must be "reasonable" and courts have all along agreed that a "reasonable rate" is one which will insure a sufficient income so that the corporation may pay all expenses of its operation and have left for its stockholders a "reasonable dividend" generally looked upon at about eight per cent.

The theory surrounding the regulation of public utility schedules so as to insure that only "reasonable" rates will be charged is correct, but in its application sometimes even a good theory fails due to the selection of feeble hands for its enforcement.

In Wisconsin the railroad commission has the right to fix the "reasonable rates" that will give the utilities a reasonable income on the property necessarily dedicated to the public use. This commission is and has been throughout a generation composed of pretty high grade men, leaning if at all, we believe, towards people's side of any controversy with the utility. But the commission hasn't had very much help. The people seem to think it is a simple thing to value not only scores, but hundreds of public utilities and set their rates for them, overhauling and reinvestigating every year to correct or to modify as changing conditions warrant or require. Of course each utility presents not only a separate problem but a series of confusing and intricate problems and so the commission is flooded with work. While the commission helps oftentimes in the investigations it is required to sit in a judicial capacity, listen to the evidence produced by the contending parties, generally a municipality on one side and a utility on the other, and determine the propositions of law in dispute. It is customary for the municipality to leave the preparation and presentation of its side to a city attorney or perhaps an assistant most often chosen for reasons which have to do with politics and not with fitness. More likely than not the attorney employed has never before handled a similar matter. Across the table from him sit the representatives of the utility skilled with twenty-five or thirty years of constant study, research and experience in the handling of the problems presented. The contest is entirely hopeless, altogether one-sided. It would be as sensible to send Fatty Arbuckle in to win the hundred yard dash.

On many occasions in this column we have urged upon the legislature the creation of a department either as an adjunct of the attorney-general's office or of the railroad commission supplying trained, skilled, talented lawyers to present the side of every municipality before the railroad commission or at least to cooperate and direct the inexperienced representatives of the city. Now the Milwaukee Journal has also asked the question: "Why does the public seem to be at such a disadvantage when it has a problem to be solved by the state railroad commission?" and also urges in the language of George W. Mead the "strengthening of the commission by providing for a body of experts, independent of the commission, to see that the public interests are fully and thoroughly protected," to which the Journal adds, "Such attorneys, by experience and daily contact with utility problems, would have less difficulty in separating issues; in insisting on keeping confusing problems apart; in demanding from the commission consideration of each question on its merits. It is not to be expected that a city attorney, with multitudinous duties, shall be as prepared as specialists whose sole business is to represent utilities."

The settlement and adjustment of important questions are on the horizon. They always are in any nation of the great population and vast wealth of ours. It is just too bad to see the public interests practically unprotected in the feeble hands in which they are entrusted in the face of these conditions that call so plainly for action. Railroad commissions are quite human. The personnel cannot help but be affected by the manner of preparation and presentation of the matters that come before them.

Public utilities are a great and necessary part of our modern civilized life. They provide conveniences and necessities without which we would feel that we were reverting to barbarism. Properly harnessed and controlled they are a great public benefit. Without real control they may turn into a greater menace than benefit.

It is difficult to understand how the legislators can avoid seeing the clear necessity of providing competent help to protect the public welfare. Yet adjustment has taken place and nothing worth while was done.

DEUTSCHLAND UEBER ALLES

"Deutschland Ueber Alles" is heard on the Rhine again. It has long been banished from the precincts of that sacred German stream by order of the Inter-Allied Rhineland High Commission. But as the British and Belgian forces of occupation begin evacuating German soil and the French prepare to follow suit, the old war song bubbles up irresistibly. The other evening it was heard from the steamer Hindenburg, as it steamed through British-occupied territory up the river toward Mainz.

The British military authorities protested, as was their duty. The French authorities, duly notified, started an investigation. It developed that a party of bakers on a holiday had started the trouble, persuading the bandmaster on the boat to play the forbidden anthem, and joining heartily in singing it.

There could have been prosecution of the guilty men, but there wasn't. It sufficed for the captain to promise that it wouldn't happen again. He could afford to make that pledge. The time isn't long. Soon the terraced hillside of the storied Rhine will be echoing again with the songs of the Fatherland.

There is no menace today in that song. Nobody is afraid, anymore of Germany being "over all." The Germans, anyway, have always protested that the song never meant that—it was only a patriotic admonition for Germans themselves to put "Germany first," or "Germany above everything." College boys, just now pretty much everywhere, are singing similar songs of loyalty to their alma mater.

SILVER MONEY

The silver dollar, Treasury officials say, has faded from circulation. Even the West, which so long refused to believe that anything but metal was real money, and prized silver coins also for their cleanliness, has gone back on them. So "cartwheel" will soon lose its meaning. It is too cumbersome for a light and swift-moving generation. Paper is the thing, and even paper money has to be made smaller. The half-dollar is still used in the West, but its manifest destiny is extinction, too. Quarters survive everywhere, because they are convenient as small change and useful for tips. What will happen to dimes is problematical. Eventually they may take the place of nickels or pennies.

Seen And Heard In New York

BY RICHARD MASSOCK

New York—Columbia university, the enormous factory of learning that reposes majestically off upper Broadway, is perhaps unique among American educational institutions for its almost utter lack of so-called college life.

In this respect, the institution's career might be symbolized on its one hundred and seventy-fifth birthday anniversary in October by one of those unostentatious rings, once familiar in rural parts.

Its size in 1754, when first created as King's college by royal charter from Charles II of England, would be represented by the nail's point; its present size by the head. But so far as showing any trace of rah-rahism, both head and point touch at the same place.

There wasn't any in 1754 and there isn't any now.

KING'S COLLEGE

When New York was a comparatively tiny settlement on the lower tip of Manhattan, King's college was founded at the instigation of the Trinity church vestry and with the aid of lotteries that raised some $17,000 for its first funds.

The students in those days were few and serious. A new nation was soon to be born and there already was intense interest in politics, which reached its height in the mobbing of the president, the Rev. Myles Cooper, an erudite English royalist, by patriotic students in 1776.

Suspended in 1776 because of the revolution, classes were reopened in 1784 and the college was rechartered under the more republican name of Columbia. And the campus pranks became widespread among the students being to steal wine out of the president's garret.

In 1857, when the college moved into an abandoned deaf and dumb asylum at Forty-ninth street and Madison avenue, students activities were even more hilarious. A few years later slinked seniors were wont to celebrate on the slightest provocation in the German beer gardens of that era.

But again cramped, the expanding university had to move in 1897 to another asylum site (the grounds of a hospital for the insane) where the scholars, actual and would-be, now scurry to classes.

METROPOLIS OF CULTURE

Now Columbia is tremendously rich and immensely large. It still owns the original downtown plot donated by Trinity church and a midtown area on Fifth avenue, given by the state. It is the latter that John D. Rockefeller, Jr. has leased, ostensibly for the location of a new Metropolitan opera house.

From that property and other sources Columbia has an annual income of $9,000,000. It has 35,000 students in all branches, 20,000 of them resident students for the winter term.

Yet such is the state of campus life that there are juniors who never have seen President Nicholas Murray Butler in person and who know only casually their instructors and classmates. One reason is that only about one-fourth of the students live near the university. The rest commute from as far away as Staten Island and suburban towns.

It is said that speakers and musicians engaged under university auspices for recitals and lectures often are disappointed to find their audiences composed, not of eager undergraduates, but of men and women, some post-graduates, but many merely curious citizens who never have been inside Columbia's massive halls.

HOWE IN PHILADELPHIA

On Sept. 27, 1777, General William Howe, a British officer, entered Philadelphia after defeating Washington at Brandywine two weeks earlier.

Howe is the officer who commanded the British at the famous Battle of Bunker Hill in 1776. After this battle Howe was victorious at Long Island, defeated Washington at White Plains and captured Fort Mifflin and Philadelphia. He settled down in New York for the winter of 1777.

He again took the field in June 1777, desiring to capture Philadelphia, but fearing the danger of a long march across country, he sailed down the coast and up the Chesapeake Bay as far as Elkton, where he landed Aug. 26.

Marching northward, Howe met Washington and defeated him Sept. 11 at Brandywine, and on Sept. 27 occupied Philadelphia.

Howe remained in Philadelphia during the winter, while Washington encamped at Valley Forge.

Howe resigned shortly after taking Philadelphia, but it was not until May, 1778, that Sir Henry Clinton was appointed to succeed him.

A REGULAR MOTHER RISES TO REMARK

An illness mother cuts loose and I am glad to let her do it in this column because I think she has something to say that a lot of us, well, we won't say half-baked, for that might offend them, but we'll say "poorly educated mothers had better hear."

By poorly educated I mean that the average young mother, no matter how much schooling she may have had, has never been taught the rudiments of maternity or child care, for these are, shameful subjects, you know, in the estimation of those who control education in this queer country.

Dear Sir:

I wonder if all this piffle written by a contemporary is meeting your approval. (We can't say, not knowing what the correspondent has in mind.)

I would like to see my 10-month-old youngster wait till 10 a. m. for his first substantial feeding!

Why 2 tablespoonsful of apple sauce? Wouldn't 2 tablespoonsful of peaches, bananas or other fruit serve as well? And why the limitation of 2 tablespoonsful?

Why stop at any certain feeding time? The baby's appetite demands food at that time?

Swiwech which is recommended is a dry, unnatural food for babies, and they will not eat it unless it is softened with milk. Of course a crust of bread which the baby enjoys munching on and which you would probably have on hand would be terribly commonplace. Oh horrors!

But why "Get Over It." One of the best things I know of to set up retching and sour stomach for several days. Why recommend that for a healthy baby?

I was brought up by an old maid aunt who religiously followed instructions in a book by some great M. D. author, whose pet rule was, "No water one hour before or one hour after meals. I suffered from colic and indigestion and attendant evils till I was 18. Then I noticed my cousins, whose mother hadn't read the book, drinking copiously with their meals. When they didn't roll over and die my faith suffered a serious jolt. They never suffered from constipation. I practically cured myself of it by drinking plenty of water with my meals from then on.

Adventures In The Library

By Arnold Mulder

EPIGRAMMATIC DIALOG

While reading Ellen Glasgow's fine novel, "They Stopped to Folly," I kept thinking, "A mighty fine book but how exasperating that it is violated by a dialog that is bristling with epigrams." That feature of the book went greatly against the grain and it is a genuine tribute to Miss Glasgow's powers that it did not spoil the novel for me. That would have been the case with any book less first class than this one in its grip on life in other ways.

Some time after I had finished I came across this comment by Harry Hanson: "The importance of Miss Glasgow's story is negligible compared with the way she tells it. Her writing reads like that cultured, epigrammatic conversation one always hopes to hear but never does."

Showing that what may be meant for one reader may be poison for another. If I had been called upon to express the most damning criticism of "They Stopped to Folly" I should have said substantially what Harry Hanson says but I should have said it in depreciation of the book not in praise.

Hansen admits that the epigrammatic conversation that is found in Miss Glasgow's book is never met with in real life. Any reader can easily test that for himself at any time. People do not talk in epigrams. Neither peasants nor the sophisticated. Now and then the sophisticated will make a sort of an exercise of that kind of thing. They will polish epigrams as a contest, one trying to outdo the other, just as good story tellers will spin yarns against one another, one yarn spurring to another.

But that is not what is met with in "They Stopped to Folly." The characters in the book are people of considerable culture but they are not in any sense epigrammatic. They are not trying for epigrams and they are represented as being hardly conscious of making clever remarks. At least they are not being artificially spurred to making them. When the epigrams drop, at the rate of one to a speech, they are supposed to come naturally, out of the substance of the conversation. In other words, the epigram is not made for the sake of the epigram but is as natural as correct speech to a cultivated person.

As Harry Hanson says, you never hear that in real life. An effective epigram requires a great deal of polishing. It is very seldom improvised. Occasionally it is, they are the surprise of the person making it, and in such cases it is entirely permissible in dialog either in life or in fiction. But epigrams do not come in droves and groups as they do in "They Stopped to Folly." At the very best they are sole efforts as a rule and they are few and far between.

Even if all the characters in a book were Ellen Glasgows, people who are adept at coining good epigrams, they would not talk the way the fairly average people in "They Stopped to Folly" do. There would be no time to join the clever phrases in the ebb and flow of average conversation. In the book of course Ellen Glasgow has had ample time to whittle out the epigrams one by one, carefully and artistically. Taken by themselves, they are remarkably good, highly amusing and a delight in every way. But as the conversation of average cultivated people they constitute a blot upon the novel. People don't talk that way, as Hansen himself admits, and it seems to me that all that is required to clinch the argument that such dialog does not belong in a realistic novel.

Instead of agreeing that "The importance of Miss Glasgow's story is negligible compared to the way she tells it," I should say that the importance of the story is such that it overcomes the handicap of the way she tells it.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—There's a job awaiting an interior decorator at No. 5 and 7 Rue des Chaillois in Paris.

A nursery must be added to the American embassy. And a fairly large one at that. For the three children of Senator Walter E. Edge, this country's next ambassador to France, will require a lot of room.

Camilla is barely six, Mary Esther is three and Loyall Howard has just celebrated his second birthday. There is a fourth, Walter Evans, Jr., son of Senator Edge by his first marriage, but he is 14 and past the nursery stage.

Youth will be in abundance in Rue des Chaillois. In addition to the children there will be the wife of the ambassador. Mrs. Edge is not yet 30, and will have the distinction of being the youngest hostess of an American embassy.

But despite her youth she will be no stranger to Paris or to the responsibilities of a diplomatic household.

DIPLOMATIC FAMILY
Camilla Loyall and Sewall Edge comes from a family which has already made a mark in American diplomacy. Her father, Harold Sewall, was this country's last minister to Hawaii.

He made a name for himself back in 1896 when he resigned his diplomatic post at Honolulu, which he held under President Cleveland, and took the stump against his father-in-law when he ran for governor of Maine.

Sound money meant more to Harold Sewall than family pride at that time. The father forgave the rebellious son, and it is said he privately applauded his spunk.

Mrs. Edge has inherited the family love of politics. Before her marriage she delighted in traveling up and down her native state of Maine with her father when he was republican national committeeman.

She speaks French perfectly. Much of her education was gained abroad. After her father's retirement from the field of diplomacy the family lived a great deal on the continent.

She studied in a convent at Brussels, the usual road, and upon her return to this country completed her education at St. Timothy's school at Catonsville, Md.

ACCOMPLISHED
Mrs. Edge has the reputation in Washington of being one of the most accomplished hostesses in the senatorial group.

She made her debut first in Boston, then in New York, and was introduced to Washington society. It was during her first season in the capital that she met Senator Edge.

She is tall, rather dark in complexion and very attractive. She dresses rather plainly, but always smartly. Her taste in evening gowns inclines to bright colors instead of the more

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK OBSERVANCE URGED BY MCGILLAN

Presidential Proclamation Sets Aside Oct. 6 to 12

Plans for observance of fire prevention week, which by presidential proclamation has been set for the week from Oct. 6 to 12, are being made by Fire Chief George P. McGillan. Special plans are being arranged for making Oct. 9, which has been officially designated as fire prevention day.

"Reports indicate that 73 lives were lost and 163 persons were seriously injured in fires in Wisconsin in 1928," Chief McGillan said. "In addition there was a loss of over $9,000,000 to property. This sacrifice of lives, limb and property is pathetic because needless, as fires can be prevented. For a remedy the individual citizens of the state must be appealed to. The anniversary of the Chicago fire, Oct. 9, and the week are reminders of the needless sacrifice and an opportunity for serious thought and intelligent action to stop the waste."

The chief pointed out that the public has been indifferent to the fire hazard and that special effort should be made during fire prevention week to awaken them to the existing dangers. Among the suggestions given by Chief McGillan for protection from fire are:

"A more general use of fire resistant building materials, constructing buildings so that fires cannot readily spread through walls, partitions and hidden spaces and keeping buildings free from combustible waste materials will prevent most fires and confine others. First aid extinguishing appliances, such as approved fire extinguishers, will put out others with small loss."

The people, not insurance companies pay the fire loss. This fact was well impressed by President Hoover when he said: "Fire losses are in fact a tax on every man, woman and child in the United States. This is one case where the 'tax-payers,' namely by their own efforts, can reduce the rate. I hope we shall have no slackers in this campaign."

REFRIGERATOR FIRM LEASES SODA FOUNTAINS

Madison—(AP)—The drug store soda fountain, which took the first step in converting the old apothecary shop into a sales emporium for general merchandise may undergo another change that will mark the invasion of chain departments into individual drug stores. The Wisconsin Retail Bulletin, published by the University of Wisconsin school of commerce has learned that a refrigeration company is leasing the soda fountain sections of drug stores and operating them independently.

The firm installs modern equipment, handles the newspaper advertising and window display, employs the fountain help and features "home made" ice cream.

"The four fountains now under this operation have shown an average sales increase of 300 per cent in the few months they have been under new management," the Bulletin said. It told of none under the "new management" in Wisconsin as yet.

CITY SOLVES TROUBLE OF "RADIO JOY RIDER"

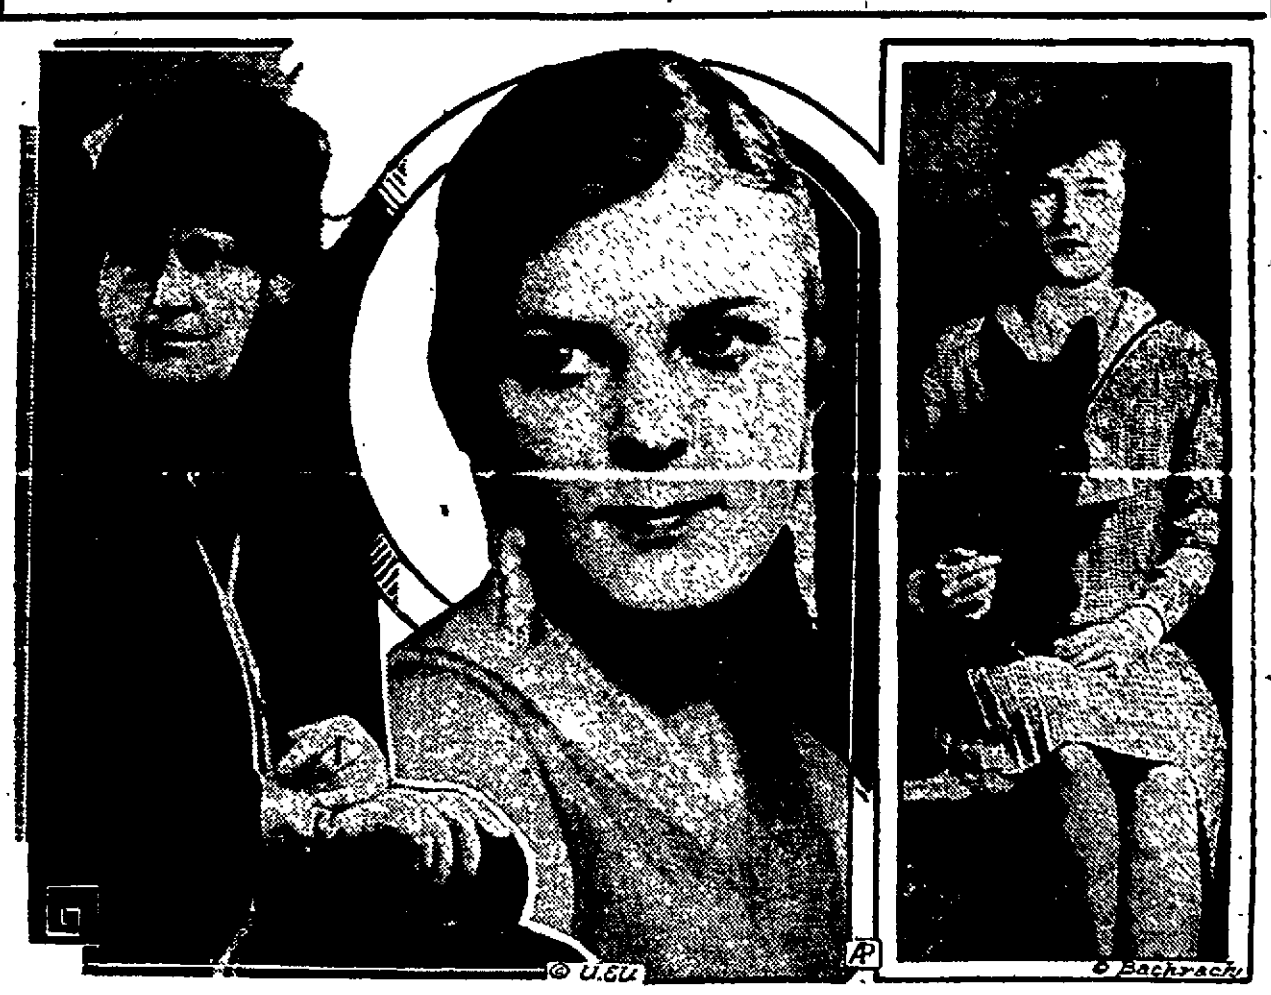

Madison—(AP)—Wisconsin's university school of commerce has learned how radio dealers in eastern cities have stopped the "radio demonstration joy rider," who keeps his home constantly supplied with a radio set by the simple expedient of having demonstration sets out as often as the previous ones are called for.

Radio dealers in this city, the Retail Bulletin published by the school reveals, have banded together through their commercial organization and get up a weekly letter to all cooperators giving the names of all to whom sets were sent and their reason for not purchasing. The list lists how long the machine was kept and how many sets the individual firm has sent out to each individual. The demonstrators receiving a call from one of the persons listed then makes his chances.

Long And Brilliant Social Year Is Ahead Of Gay Sets In National Capital

With a gay season in prospect, Mrs. Herbert Hoover (left) will be kept busy in Washington this winter. Miss Caroline Roebeling (center) is one of the prominent debutantes in the capital. Princess Elizabeth de Ligne (right) is the daughter of the ambassador from Belgium, in whose home many of Washington's most brilliant affairs are held.

BY SUE McNAMARA

Washington—(AP)—Washington is preparing for the longest and most brilliant social season in years.

Several events contribute to the unusually early opening of the season and its lengthening into late April. President Hoover's election to stay in the capital all summer kept many important personages here who ordinarily would have gone abroad.

The extra session of congress brought many congressmen and their wives here far earlier than usual. The visit of Ramsay MacDonald, prime minister of England, and his daughter Isabel, early in October will start the social season off in earnest.

From then on it will be a round of dinners, teas, receptions and balls. Easter, the time when society sheds its bright garb and goes into eclipse, comes very late—April 20.

And not since jolly William Howard Taft was president has a season of such lavish entertaining at the White House been anticipated as this coming first winter under the Hoover regime.

While the champagne punch of Taft days cannot return, Washington is wondering if the Coolidge spartan diet of ice water for state receptions will not be supplanted at least by fruit punch.

The Hoovers have done more entertaining in six months, say veteran social leaders, than the Coolidges did in seven years. If frosted cakes and fruit punch are not an accompaniment to high heels and tall coats this coming winter, the wisecracks will miss their guess.

The President and Mrs. Hoover have scarcely eaten a luncheon or dinner without guests since March 4. They have gone in strong for group entertaining. These groups have ranged from cabinet officials and other high dignitaries to newspaper men and officers of the Girl Scouts. They have taken large parties with them on their week end trips to the President's fishing camp.

Meanwhile, for those no more interested in official entertainment than in capital festivities in general, a vista of spangled night stretches ahead, glamorous with smart uniforms, titles and interesting personalities from over the globe.

Many of Washington's brilliant affairs are held at the home of Prince Albert de Ligne, the ambassador from Belgium and his wife. They are among the most popular of the diplomatic families. Their daughter, Princess Elizabeth, already has been presented to society.

Miss Caroline Roebeling is among the most prominent debutantes who are eagerly preparing for the first debutante tea October 10.

This will be given by Mrs. Helen Ray Hagner and will be followed by a second November 4 given by Mrs. William Laird Dunlop. The teas will be at their height around Thanksgiving and debutante balls will punctuate Christmas week with sparkling variety.

Something unusual, too, this year for the more mature women is the Bal Masque, the first big masquerade Halloween party capital society has had in years.

An outstanding event of the season is the annual midshipmen's and cadets' ball Christmas night.

The Story of Sue by MARGERY HALE © 1929 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER XXX. Sue bought the new dress and hat during her lunch hour the next day. The dress was of deep blue that matched her eyes. There was a silver jacket, very straight and tailored, its severity relieved by the cape collar of the dress that was worn outside. The hat was a vici straw worked in blues and roses. She wanted to initiate it by doing something unusual.

Jack interrupted her reveries in the afternoon. "I need advice. Could you spare some?" He dropped into the chair next to her desk, and Martin Clinger, passing through the office, seemed to glare at them.

"Of course. What do you want to know?" She answered a light on the switchboard and plugged a call. "For you, Mr. Thornton."

"Yes, yes, Sure. What time, Sybil? Yes, I'll be there." There was some more, but Sue didn't listen. She wondered why the girl with the perfect clothes and cool silvery voice had to call at the wrong time always.

"Funny, wasn't it?" Jack asked as he replaced the telephone. "I wanted to ask you about Sybil. This is her birthday and I forgot it until Mother reminded me of it at noon. I'm sick of books and flowers and candy. Tell me something new."

"I don't know," Sue wrinkled her brows. "And you want to take it when you see her, don't you?" "We're going to that dinner of Polly's, the one you turned down," he added. He yawned and apologized: "I'm too sleepy to go anywhere. Last night there was a stag poker party. But what shall I get for Sybil? I guess I'll send flowers again. How about three dozen red, red roses. There are more poems about red roses than anything else. She'll have to like them. I'll order them now and have them sent to the bank. That will surprise her. They should go to the house, always. That's why they won't this time."

He strolled back in his own office, placed his call, and left in a little while. "I hear you're getting a slice of the commission, Miss Merrymann," Martin Clinger said an hour or so later. "Now will you believe I wasn't holding up the idol of the firm in his search? My trail might have been wrong but it wasn't blocked. I'm his."

"It looked that way. I could not understand your interest. Not by as much as by a glance did she let him know that she had fathomed his reasons more clearly."

"Then, next time maybe you'll trust me." His words were made of acid tones.

"Will you give this to Mr. Jack Thornton, Sue?"

Sue looked up to see her father standing in the doorway, holding an enormous box which unmistakably contained flowers. "Miss Lester sent it."

NEXT: Sybil comes to the office.

Interesting Menus

By Sister Mary

With the opening of school days, breakfast becomes perhaps the most important meal of the day. Children must have a nourishing, unburied breakfast before they can begin the day. The normal adult should have some type of morning meal even if it's the "lightest" variety.

The adult who is dieting to reduce and decides to eat but two meals a day gives his digestive apparatus a fairer chance if he goes without his luncheon rather than his breakfast. This divides the time between meals more equally.

Breakfast for children should be of the "heart" type. A morning in school uses up a vast amount of nervous energy as well as physical strength. No child can work mentally who is not nourished. Listlessness, headache or irritability may be the result.

The child who has little appetite for breakfast may not be having the right sort of evening meal. Too much and too rich food at bed-time keep the stomach working over time. Too little ventilation or careless ventilation and wrong bed-covers can make a child indifferent to his breakfast. A draft across the bed can cause a stuffy and uncomfortable feeling in the morning as insufficient fresh air can. Too heavy bed covers weigh a child down and make him feel tired while too light covers tend to make him curl into a ball in the effort to keep warm and he awakens cramped and uncomfortable with no desire for food.

A good meal to start the day is the normal, healthy requirement of children.

The breakfast fruit can be varied using the less acid fresh fruits alternately with stewed fruits. Cereals with plenty of rich milk or

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE merry-go-round was lots of fun. Of course the ponies didn't run, but even so they sailed around and seemed to think it great. The carpenter pulled on the rope that made it go. Said he, "I hope you Tynmites will not mind it if I shorty hesitate."

"You see, I'm getting all tired out. I love to hear you loudly shout, but kindly wait a moment till I try and catch my breath. When everything is said and done, I'm always glad to furnish fun, but really, 'I would be foolish if I worked myself to death.'"

"Well, say," said Scouty, "let me try to make these wooden ponies fly around and 'round. I'll pull the rope. Hop on and take my seat. Don't fret a bit 'cause I don't mind. I'm glad to do it. You're so kind." "All right," replied the carpenter. "Fresh air will be a treat."

"Brave Scouty" worked the thing real well. And then he heard we Clowny yell. "Hey, let me off. I've had enough. I'm dizzy as can be. Just stop this thing real quick. That's all! I feel just like I'm going to fall." Then Scouty stopped it. Clowny felt so queer he couldn't see.

"They all took turns and then the bunch decided they would like some lunch. I'll fix you up with bread and jam," the carpenter cried out. So, to his house they promptly went and 'bout a half an hour was spent in eating. Then the Tynmites took a nap and lolled about.

Late in the day they all awoke. The carpenter jumped up and spoke. "I'll give you all a present that I hope you will not lose. 'Twill furnish you with heaps of fun. You all can fly instead of run." And then he handed everyone a pair of wooden shoes.

(The Tynmites sail away in the next story.)

BEG PARDON

Victor Larsen, Neenah, asserted this morning he was not the man meant in an article prepared by Dr. Ronald B. Rogers of Neenah for the American Medical Journal concerning a man who developed baldness each time a child was born to his wife. Dr. Rogers said that no name was used in the article appearing in the medical journal, but that a Milwaukee newspaperman had assumed that Larsen was the person meant, and in spite of Rogers' denials, had used his name in the story.

WESTERN UNION IS COOL ON PROPOSED TIE-UP WITH RADIO

Negotiations for Hook-up Have Netted Nothing Thus Far

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
New York — An operating arrangement between the Western Union and the Universal Wireless Communications company, Inc., which would tie up the former company in the virgin continental radio-telegraph field, is the objective of negotiations now being conducted, but which thus far have netted nothing, according to information obtained exclusively by this correspondent Thursday.

Universal, a newcomer in communications, has received the largest grant of domestic short wave channels to any individual company. It is in on the ground floor of radio telegraphy to serve in competition with the Western Union and Postal.

That Western Union, which has been inclined to stand aloof from radio and regard it lightly as a competitor to its far-flung wire services, has been approached by Universal about a tie-up is disclosed by J. C. Wilver, Western Union first vice-president. He says that the matter has been "discussed" but that the negotiations have by no stretch of imagination reached a point where concrete plans have been laid.

The Western Union, he told this writer without reservation is still outside the radio field.

Newcomb Carlton, Western Union president, prefers to say nothing about radio or its possible competitive effects upon wire lines. He declines to be drawn into any discussion about it at this time.

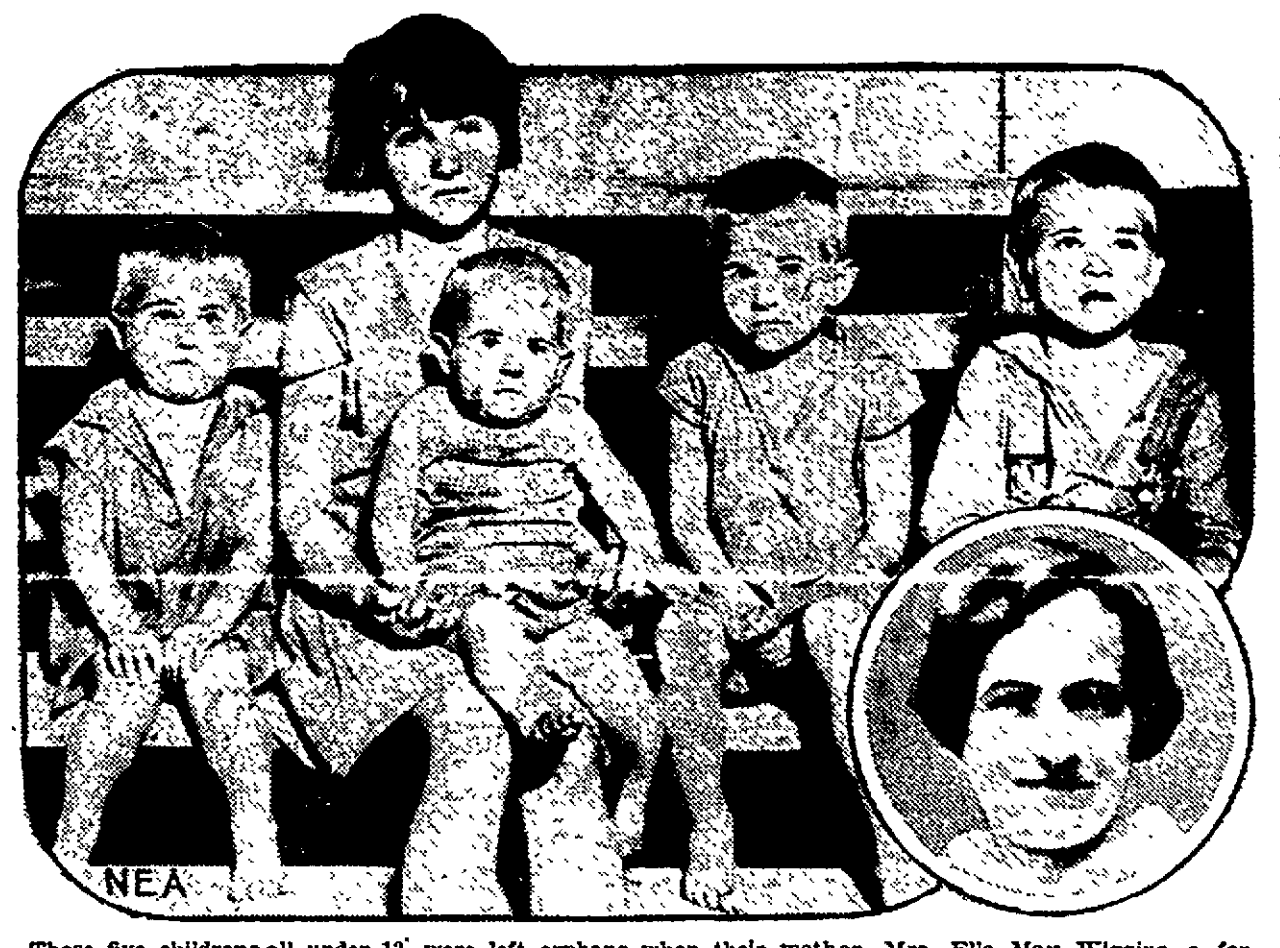

Just what might be the projected tie-up between the companies—one in international institution in the absolute leadership of its industry; the other an embryonic organization, struggling to break out of its shell, but with a "million dollar" gift of nature is conjectural. An out-and-out fusion is not permitted under the radio law, which prevents merging of wire and wireless companies.

CAN'T SELL CHANNELS

It was emphatically brought out by committees of congress recently that sale by Universal of its grants of channels, which are held to be the property of the public would not be tolerated and that Universal itself must follow through with its plans or the creation of a national radio-telegraph network interconnecting 10 of the largest cities.

But it is stated at Western Union headquarters that Universal has reached the matter of pick-up and delivery arrangement with Western Union, which roughly, would mean the utilization of Western Union's office and messenger services in the handling of Universal's traffic. This in the opinion of experts, would go a long way toward "making" the Universal, since it would solve what Universal considers to be one of its basic problems—a communications organization. Universal is entirely

Five Children Orphaned by Gastonia Mob

These five children, all under 12, were left orphans when their mother, Mrs. Ella May Wiggins, a former cotton mill worker, was killed when an anti-communist mob fired on a truck as she and other strikers were enroute to South Gastonia to attend a communist meeting. Seven men were arrested by authorities on charges of murder of the woman. Above, left to right, are Albert, 3; Myrtle, 11; holding C halady, 13 months; Millie, 6, and Clyde 8. Mrs. Wiggins is shown in inset.

optimistic about its technical ability to comply with the terms of its grant, making it mandatory that but 40 continental channels be used to link the 110 cities, and that they be in operation by 1932.

Western Union persistently has refused to enter into such traffic arrangements with the Radio Corporation of America. So has the Postal company. At a hearing before the radio commission just a year ago, RCA executives charged that both the land line companies had tried to "strangle" radio competition and had declined to enter into a contractual arrangement of the type that Universal now evidently is seeking.

As a matter of fact, this was the plea of the RCA for a large block of continental short wave channels, which, however, it did not receive. They were given the Universal company, with the RCA tendered only what was left, and that only after a bitter fight. RCA contended that it had to rid itself of dependence upon the land lines in its trans-oceanic business, and that to get this "pick-up and delivery" service within the country, it had to have the channels.

From the attitude of the Western Union executives it appears that the company is entertaining no plans to join forces in any way with Universal. The "hands off radio" policy seems still to exist. But observers around the radio commission have watched with more than casual interest the presence of Western Union personnel at all hearings bearing on domestic radio telegraphy.

ASK RULING ON POINT IN DRY LAW DISPUTE

Court Must Decide if Property Seized in Raid Can Be Recovered

Washington —(AP)—The government has asked the supreme court to decide the right of industrial establishments to recover property seized in connection with a violation of the prohibition law.

The controversy selected as a test case arose in Massachusetts in 1923 when an electric lighting plant was seized by federal prohibition agents in a raid on the Elk Breeding and Grazing association at Middleboro. An electric plant furnished by the Kohler company was installed in a building on the association's farm, and a last installment of the purchase price became due a day after the seizure.

As the owner of the plant, the Kohler company demanded its return and the circuit court of appeals upheld the claim on the ground that it had not been used in or designed for the unlawful manufacture of liquor.

Taking the position that this construction was narrow and defeated the purpose of the prohibition law, and that the plant was forfeitable under the law, the government asked the highest court to make a ruling to guide it in the enforcement of the prohibition law.

QUEER INSURANCE

New York — Some people have taken out insurance on members of their body. Mrs. Blanche Savitt, of Oklahoma City, a perfume expert, has insured her nose for $50,000. Horton Smith and Walter Hagen, golfers, have insured their hands and feet, the former for $25,000 and the latter for $50,000. Den Turpin, famed screen comedian, is said to have his eyes insured against the possibilities of his "cock-eyes" becoming normal.

Fetes For MacDonalds To Be Ruled By Weatherman

BY BESS FURMAN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Washington—(AP)—The weather, as it has a way of doing in so many of man's affairs, has become a vital factor in the entertainment of Premier Ramsay MacDonald and Miss Isabel MacDonald by President Hoover and Mrs. Hoover.

Thus far, the most important item on the official program of the British premier and his daughter remains breakfast and least explicit. It reads: "Sunday, Oct. 6, Mr. MacDonald and Miss MacDonald will be guests of President and Mrs. Hoover." It doesn't tell where, nor what they will be doing.

If early October is brightly blue and warm, that brief announcement may mean the outdoor-loving Hoovers would entertain the hardy highland MacDonalds at their Virginia mountain camp. The time limits of the program would permit a snatched Saturday night and Sunday on the rustic Rapidan, with a return to Washington for Monday's visit to congress, formal luncheon, and state dinner.

If October's skies are drear and chill, however, the White House, which has been taking on more and more of Mrs. Hoover's ideas of the comfortable and homelike, probably will be the background for the entire MacDonald weekend with the president.

The MacDonald visit is only a week away. Official plans are rapidly crystallizing in minutest detail. Rigid rules of etiquette will govern much of the sociability between the Hoovers and the MacDonalds. The first brief formal call of the premier must be returned by the president within 20 minutes. The 1 o'clock luncheon dinner will be an elaborate affair of state, including the gold table service.

But the Saturday half holiday and Sunday will belong to President and Mrs. Hoover as host and hostess. No precedents exist to restrict and formalize such occasions. The household remains quietly Quaker in its refusal to be bound by conventions.

At any moment, the president may decide to go packing off to the Rapidan camp with the prime minister. In that event, Ramsay MacDonald might add his stony contribution to the famous fish pool dams built during the summer by President Hoover and his informal guests. Many a baffling internal program was advanced toward solution during the summer dam building play, and it is not impossible that the international problem of naval disarmament may be lifted closer to a conclusion along with the placing of a big rock in the water.

On the weather decreeing otherwise, the premier and Miss Isabel may enjoy one of these delightful Sunday night suppers at the White House to which guests are bidden by telephone. No precedents are allowed to stand in the way of enjoyment on those occasions either.

A dash of sugar develops these flavors

IT IS one of the wonders of today—thanks to improved canning methods—that we can now have the whole year 'round practically every fruit and vegetable grown. Serve these healthful foods daily and don't forget that a dash of sugar here and there while you are warming the foods for serving will improve their deliciousness and all their appetizing qualities.

Another wonder of modern growing, shipping and marketing is the great number of months that so many fresh fruits and vegetables are now "in season." The fresh fruit and vegetable season is now longer than ever and the modern cannery fills all gaps with delicious full-vitamin-bearing foods. In cooking fresh vegetables, in making salad dressings, in preparing stewed fruits, in serving fresh tart fruits and berries or fruit punches—remember always that sugar is the supreme flavorer of these healthful foods. Expert cooks explain to us that sugar does more than sweeten. It develops entirely new and delightful flavors in the foods.

Serve fruits and vegetables daily. Serve milk drinks and milk desserts. Add a little sugar also in preparing meat dishes, gravies and soups, and notice the better flavor. Sugar is the supreme seasoning. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

NEENAH BASEBALL TEAM MAY SECURE NEW PARK

Neenah—This city may have a baseball park next summer if plans launched at the last Kiwanis meeting materialize. A movement was started to acquire the land near the Senior high school. Citizens' Athletic field, which was sponsored by the Kiwanis club and turned over to the school authorities, is not the right size for hard ball, it is said. The American Legion is to work with the service clubs in securing funds with which to purchase a site.

THE FIRST AUTHORIZED STORY OF THE LIFE OF THE COMMANDER OF THE ZEPPELINS

CHAPTER VIII

BY HUGH ALLEN

With all of his commercial pilot off to war, Dr. Eckener found his task of training other men for service becoming more and more pressing. He had to man new ships which the navy was ordering in constantly increasing numbers, and which were being built at Friedrichshafen at ever increasing speed. He would have liked two or three years to train personnel. But in the latter years of the war when the great works at Friedrichshafen, expanded again and again by military necessities, were turning out complete ships within six to eight weeks, there was no time for such training.

Dr. Eckener sent out some fifty ship commanders during the war. Replacements were heavy as the allies built up their anti-aircraft defenses.

The first Zeppelins were used largely over land. Losses were heavy. The ships were slow and had low ceilings. Some were shot down. Some ran out of fuel before they could get back to a hangar, and had either to land in the open or drift into mountain ranges in the fog, where they were destroyed. Larger and stronger ships were called for. Karl Arnstein, a brilliant young Bohemian mathematician, joined the company shortly after the war opened and was soon to be chief engineer and constructor of some 70 full rigid ships.

Part of Dr. Eckener's work was to maintain liaison between the factory and the combat forces, to suggest alterations necessitated by changing conditions of warfare. There were plenty of changes to be made. At one time the demand was for speed, at another for increased carrying capacity, whether of fuel or munitions, and at another for greater altitude. All these affected pilot training.

While the bombing raids attracted most attention, they constituted in fact only a small part of the work of the Zeppelins, whose main task from 1917 on was in reconnaissance and patrol work with the fleet. A fast, far-ranging Zeppelin could sight an allied fleet long before the fastest surface cruiser dreamed of its presence. On more than one occasion a Zeppelin ship saved a German fleet from being cut off by superior numbers. That there were no surprise attacks on the German coast was in part due to the Zeppelins.

The airships came to be widely used too in spotting mine areas and supervising the work of the mine sweepers. The British grey successfully efficient in this work as the war went on, making a gigantic effort to bottle up the German fleet within an iron ring of high explosives. The Zeppelins helped keep the lanes open for scout ships and undersea vessels.

As the air fleet expanded, Dr. Eckener's duties grew heavier and more diversified. The training work that had been carried on at inland hangars was moved to the seaboard, with cruising trips over the North Sea, the study of naval strategy, co-operation with surface and undersea ships, navigation, night flying, and defense against anti-aircraft added to the curriculum.

The threat offered by the Zeppelins had been met by the allies with long-range guns, high-arching searchlights, faster and higher-ceilinged airplanes and finally with inflammable bullets. Each new phase of warfare affected the type and kind of training to be given ship commanders.

The handling of an airship was no longer the simple one of gas pressures, engines and control surfaces, that it had been in peace times.

The most spectacular Zeppelin flight made during the war was that of the LZ-59 from Jambol, Bulgaria, to German East Africa, plans for which were made under Dr. Eckener's personal direction.

When the World War broke out, the various German colonies had to defend themselves as well as they could, since the homeland had too much to do in Europe to give them much assistance.

Word filtered through to Berlin in 1917 that a colonial force was surrounded in German East Africa and must surrender unless help came soon.

Other things were occupying the attention of the High Command. Besides, how could battleships or regiments get to German East Africa even if they could be released from service in Europe? Someone thought of the expedient of sending a Zeppelin ship down. From the nearest point patrolled by the Central powers, which was in South Bulgaria, the distance was more than 2000 miles. Still it might be done.

Dr. Eckener welcomed it as an opportunity for demonstrating a new usefulness for his ships. The LZ-59 was just being completed. He stopped work on construction, cut the ship in two, put in a middle section, 100 feet long, making room for two additional gas bags, bringing the capacity up to close to two and a half million cubic feet, or about the size of the American Los Angeles. It became the largest airship yet built.

The ship was stripped of all superfluous equipment, reserving all possible space for munitions and supplies.

The trip was to be one-way flight. Arriving in German East Africa, the ship was to be landed and dismantled, the duralumin girders to be used for strengthening fortifications, the fabric gas bags and outer covers as tents for the men.

When the start was made early in November the ship carried 19 tons of machine gun ammunition, four tons of medical supplies and 21 tons of fuel.

The ship crossed over Turkey, Asia Minor, passed between Crete and Rhodes, reaching the African coast on the second morning. Then started a long flight across the Sahara desert.

The LZ-59 had taken in its radio antenna during a severe storm and it was near Khartoum when it received a message that the German intelligence office had been trying to get to it.

A British wireless had been intercepted with the news that the German colonial troops, not realizing that help was at hand, had surrendered to the British.

Without stopping, the ship was turned back, recrossed the desert and Black Sea, arriving safely at Jambol in less than four days from the time it set out.

There was still sufficient fuel aboard for three or four days' additional flying, although the ship had traveled 4225 miles in non-stop flight, a record that was to stand for years.

With the ending of the war, numbers of Zeppelin ships were destroyed by their crews to prevent them from falling into the hands of Allies under the same impulse that led crews of the German battle fleet to send them to the bottom. What ships remained intact were turned over to the Allies.

Dr. Eckener, his war work finished, returned to Friedrichshafen. The four years of training effort had aged him. He saw many difficulties ahead. But the work of the world must go on, he reasoned. Things must right themselves in time. The war had stopped all commercial operations, but had brought many revolutionary improvements in ships, uncovered many things applicable to commerce, and had outlined possibilities that had seemed fantastic before.

The ships had grown larger, stronger, faster, more dependable. The LZ-59 had decisively proved that a flight across the Atlantic was practicable.

Friedrichshafen seemed strange to him. The great ships that had been humming with activity were silent. And this time his great friend, Count Zeppelin, was not there to meet him.

DELAY DESTRUCTION OF BADGER RAILROAD TRACK

Neillsville — (AP) — By virtue of a compromise agreement, the Fairchild and Northeastern railway will discontinue the tearing up of track between Fairchild and Greenwood until April, 1930.

This decision was reached by attorneys and property-holders along the right of way at an Interstate Commerce commission hearing here Thursday.

By April 1 of next year the property-holders hope to sell at least part of the route to the Soo or Northwestern roads to insure themselves from being cut off entirely.

Forest D. Calway, Neillsville, attorney for the property-holders, said the Soo will be asked to purchase eight miles of track between Greenwood and Willard, to extend its Marshfield Greenwood line, or else the Northwestern be asked to buy the route from Fairchild and Greenwood to add to its Mendota-Fairchild line.

AGA KHAN DENIES HE WILL WED SHOP GIRL

Paris — (AP) — The Aga Khan, Indian religious leader and European turf figure, today telegraphed Paris newspapers denying "as an absolute invention the confectioner's shop story about me, an absurd story in the Paris Midl."

The newspaper in question printed on Wednesday a statement that the Aga Khan was to be married in November to a girl who first attracted his attention in a candy store in Chambery.

APPLETON BOOSTS INDUSTRY VALUE OVER $2,000,000

Manufacturing Establishments in City Increase to 70 in Two Years

BY RUBY A. BLACK
(Washington Correspondent of the Post-Crescent)

Washington — Appleton increased in importance as a manufacturing city between the last two censuses of manufactures, having larger pay-rolls, using more materials, and producing greater values in goods.

Value of manufactures in Appleton amounted to $19,723,069 in 1927, when the last census of manufactures was taken, as against $17,538,746 in 1925, the last preceding census, according to a report just made public by the United States Department of Commerce.

The number of manufacturing establishments increased from 67 in 1925 to 70 in 1927, the number of wage-earners from 2,705 in 1925 to 2,936 in 1927, the wages paid them from $3,195,712 in 1925 to $3,515,251 in 1927.

The average wage paid, however, was $4 a year less in 1927 than in 1925, the average being $1.177 in 1927 as against $1.181 in 1925. The average manufacturing wage paid in the Badger state in 1927 was $1.302, and the average paid in Outagamie county was $1.203.

Of other cities in Wisconsin of more than 10,000 population, Madison, Bay, Janesville, La Crosse, Green Bay, Marinette, Milwaukee, Racine, Sheboygan, Stevens Point, Superior, Waukesha, Wausau, and West Allis showed increases in the value of manufactured products, while Ashland, Beloit, Eau Claire, Fond du Lac, Kenosha, Manitowish and Oshkosh showed decreases in the value of products.

The "value of products" as defined by the Department of Commerce in the census of manufactures does not refer to total value of the product, but to the value added by manufacturing. That is, the cost of materials and possibly other items are subtracted from the total value of the product to arrive at the value added by manufacturing.

In Appleton, $11,615,614 worth of materials were used in 1927 as against $9,850,460 worth in 1925.

REPORT COUNTERFEIT NOTES IN CIRCULATION

Information has been received at the postoffice regarding the circulation of counterfeit new issue, $5 and $10 Federal Reserve notes from the treasury department. The notes should not deceive the wary holder of currency, according to the department.

The $5 note is on the Federal Reserve bank of Chicago; series 1928-A; check letter "H"; face plate No. 6; back plate No. 145; W. O. Woods, treasurer of the United States; A. W. Mellon, secretary of the treasury and a portrait of Abraham Lincoln.

The counterfeit is a photo-mechanical production printed from poorly etched plates on one sheet of paper. As in other photo-mechanical counterfeits, this note fails to reveal the finely cut lines which show distinctly in the border lathework and portrait in the genuine, the portrait being particularly defective in that it merges with the oval background instead of standing out clear in relief. The face of the note is about one-eighth of an inch shorter than the genuine, and the numbering and seal, as well as the back, are off color in a dark shade of green. The specimen at hand bears serial number G 06625016 A.

The $10 is issued on the Federal Reserve bank of San Francisco; series 1928; check letter "B," and bears the portrait of Hamilton.

The counterfeit is a straight photographic reproduction printed on one sheet of paper coated with a gelatine solution which gives it a glossy appearance. The black outlines of the seal and numbering have been retouched by hand with green ink.

CITY OFFICIALS UNDER HANDICAP AMONG PAINTERS

Headquarters of city government have for years been flung hither and thither by their red-tape and consequent slow-motion. But their speed in the dear dead days before the painters took up their demand the city hall was meteoric in comparison to the pace at which city business now moves.

With canvas coverings draped over everything from the floor to the Mayor's hat, paint pails perched on top of typewriters, and scaffolding barricading vault doors and desk drawers, it's no small wonder that making out a milk license or locating the city ordinance about discarding banana peels are tasks that require the persistence of an insurance salesman and the patience of Job.

After two days of chase, each office comes out looking like a newly starched collar set. Wall maps and pictures are rehanging with painful precision, cuspidors are placed at the proper acrometric angle, desk drawers are sorted and cleaned, and a million and one white elephants are relegated to the wastebasket. Documents, office equipment, and telephone books mislaid for months have come to light, and though the smell of paint has been tough on the lacrimal glands of the city hall officials, the general housecleaning brought on by the sweep of the brush was worth it.

Completion of the road cut the distance between New London and Black Creek from 20.5 miles to 15 miles and also eliminated seven dangerous grade crossings. Practically all of the work was done by machinery.

One of the most difficult features of the project was building the fill across the flats of the Embarras river about two miles east of New London. Heavy rains, which swelled the river, frequently interfered with the excavating work. Another peculiar feature of the job was that the contractor did not meet rock at any point in the work. The dirt was chiefly peat, with some sand or red clay.

MAGAZINE TELLS OF IMPROVEMENTS TO HIGHWAY 54

State Publication Outlines History of Relocation and Underpass Erection

A history of the relocation of Highway 54, between New London and Black Creek, and the underpass construction at Black Creek which eliminated a dangerous grade crossing, is described in the September issue of Badger Highways, official organ of the Wisconsin Highway commission.

Work on the relocation started May 21, 1928, by R. B. Vickery company, and was completed last August. A total of 135,000 cubic yards were excavated on the new road; 25,000 yards of borrow excavation was accomplished; 14 carloads of copper pipe were installed and one 20-foot span concrete bridge was built.

Completion of the road cut the distance between New London and Black Creek from 20.5 miles to 15 miles and also eliminated seven dangerous grade crossings. Practically all of the work was done by machinery.

"M'DONALD" REALLY IS NAMED MACDONALD

Madison—(AP)—One of Wisconsin's railroad commissioners is named McDonald—or is it MacDonald?

Really it is "MacDonald." Officially it is McDonald.

When Andrew R. MacDonald went to work for the North Western railroad in this state many years ago, he found another man working on the same division who had the same name, but who did not put in as many hours and draw as big a salary as he did. The trouble started when the other MacDonald got hold of our Mr. MacDonald's pay check.

So the present commissioner changed his name on the company records to McDonald.

When former Gov. Blaine appointed him a member of the railroad commission, he did not ask Mr. MacDonald how to spell his name, but signed it McDonald to the commissioner document.

Consequently it is MacDonald in the state papers he signs.

Mr. MacDonald was born in Canada of Scotch parents.

MORE BUILDING IN CITY LAST MONTH

Valuation of New Construction Is Estimated at Approximately $99,101

Although the country showed signs of a slowing down in building construction during August, according to the report of the national monthly building survey of S. W. Straus and company, Appleton's building operations during August transcended those of July by almost $20,000, but fell far below that of August last year. Buildings erected in Appleton during the past month aggregated $99,101.25, whereas last year at the same time they amounted to $579,775, and to $80,260 during July.

The amount of building done in the entire state during August was less than during July, and almost two million dollars less than in August, 1928. The total of Wisconsin building operations last month was $6,333,972, while last year at the same time $8,227,518 was spent in building. July building amounted to $7,974,115.

Wisconsin was tenth on the list of twelve leading states, with New York as usual, in first with a volume of $59,973,976.

Buildings in Green Bay showed a healthy increase over last year's building and over July construction. August buildings totalled $644,782, over $400,000 more than at the same time last year, and $300,000 more than during July. Oshkosh, with $168,856 in building during the past month, showed only a small increase over last year and last month.

August buildings erected in Fond du Lac cost $66,943; in Manitowish $35,780; in Beloit $248,095; in Eau Claire $224,300; Wausau $11,700; and Milwaukee $3,055,553.

WISCONSIN BUSINESS BETTER THIS AUGUST

Madison—(AP)—Wisconsin business, in general, was nearly nine per cent ahead, during August, of that for the same month a year ago, the Wisconsin Retail Bulletin, monthly publication of the University of Wisconsin extension division and school of commerce, said here today.

Every city reporting showed increases in business done, as follows: Milwaukee, 11.2 per cent; Green Bay, 10 per cent; Oshkosh, 6.7 per cent; Sheboygan, 6.4 per cent; Chippewa Falls, 7.7 per cent; Hudson, 4.2 per cent; LaCrosse, 16.3 per cent; Merrill 49 per cent; Superior 22.2 per cent. Combined figures for the eastern part of the state showed an increase of 9.3 per cent, while the western section was 5.3 per cent ahead of last year.

Employment conditions last month were 8 1-2 per cent better than those twelve months earlier, and a slight gain was shown over July of this year.

Milk prices for August, however, were 11 cents per hundred pounds below those for July and 16 cents a hundred under August 1928.

THE PRECISION INSTRUMENT

... a new radio-receiver and a new ideal

TO THE MAN WHO LOVES the sing of a golf-ball in full flight... to the woman who drives her own sport-coupe... to that portion of the public, in short, that has the time, the money, and the inclination to enjoy the better things of contemporary life, we present something new and refreshing.

Only such a restricted group, we feel, will appreciate in full the Eveready policy of "not how many, but how well"... the Eveready ideal of superb craftsmanship that builds for permanence, for lasting satisfaction over a period of years, for a definite return in happiness on the money you invest in this medium of home-entertainment.

The Precision Instrument

We like to refer to the new Eveready as the Precision Instrument... a radio-receiver born of a passion for painstaking accuracy; a precision that shuns the slap-dash assembly of mass production; a precision that does not stress one part or one feature at the expense of the others; a precision that you expect to find in a fine piano or a superlative motor-car.

This precision is predicated on precision... that long look into the future when the oratory of the salesman is forgotten; when, five or ten years from now, you will still be enjoying fine, clear, natural reception through the Eveready receiver you buy today.

From the winding of a coil to the tightening of a tiny nut, Eveready precision obtains all along the line. Even the cabinets—those truly beautiful pieces of furniture that are a delight to live with, day after day—even the cabinets are designed to serve the sound-reproducing qualities of the receiver.

For instance, our research-laboratories, with the facilities and experience of the great electrical and scientific organization that sponsors them, have found a way to make radio weather-proof! This means that on hot, muggy nights, your Eveready receiver will be as sensitive as in crisp November. Distant stations will come in at room-filling volume. Clear... full-voiced... faithful to the original tone as it enters the microphone, miles away.

—the man who loves the sing of a golf-ball in full flight

Built for years of service

If improvements are developed and found worth while in actual practice—they will be added. There may be refinements in the years to come, but we doubt that actual improvement, fundamental improvement, can be made in this present receiver, whose very basis is precision. Your investment today is therefore safeguarded. No "yearly model" is likely to render it obsolete.

We think of the Precision Instrument also as a musical instrument. It brings you the programs of the air in all their natural tone and volume—with nothing added, nothing taken away. It is actually "a ticket to the microphone"... it takes you to wherever the broadcasting originates, as though by private wire. And the price is no higher than you are asked to pay for the ordinary "commercial" radio-receiver.

If you have been confused by the babel of claims and counter-claims; if you are bewildered by technical terminology; if you have never owned any sort of radio, for one reason or another; if you have been disheartened (or disgusted!) by the new this or the new that which seems to make any radio obsolete overnight, we urge you to hear the new Eveready... this precision instrument; this finely engineered music-medium that will not be out of date next month or next year! # NEW LUXURIES ARE FURNISHED BY NEW YORK APARTMENTS

Residents Do Not Even Have to Go Outside Building to Make Purchases

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright, 1929, by Cons. Press
New York — Thursday the moving van charges in New York City went from $12 to $15 an hour which means the start of the fall moving rush, culminating Oct. 1, in the nation's single largest annual shift of population.

There are more than 10,000,000 persons in the region within New York city. Several millions of them make summer and winter migrations and with all the digging and rebuilding going on in Manhattan, the rest of them are kept pretty much on the move. Whatever may be said of New York, it does keep moving. It is a truckman's paradise.

Just now the truckmen are fuming over the lack of teamwork between the architects of the new buildings and the furniture makers. The smart modern apartments have small doorways and the modernistic furniture hasn't been trimmed to fit. The old fashioned houses with their mahogany chandeliers and their fifteen-foot ceilings, had doors big enough to admit a circus wagon.

The oversight of the new architects is causing all sorts of trouble and confusion. They subordinate utility to the aesthetic requirements for a small apartment in a large, stuccoed wall space, usually without trim. It is a great success artistically, but it is driving the truckmen to profanity. One large up-town apartment is enlarging its doors.

While the truck market has sapped considerable money out of the building industry, the summer exiles return to a new and bewildering jumble of towers and tall pent-house apartments, offering new odds and ends of luxury never before dreamed of for apartments or hotels.

OFFER NEW LUXURIES
One twenty-five story, pyramided apartment building on the upper West Side has included an impressive art gallery, with surprisingly good collection of paintings, etchings and statuary. It also includes a swimming pool, a gymnasium and roof playgrounds and apparatus for children and rooms which may be used as classrooms if desired. If the tenants wish to organize a private school under the home roof tree. This, like most of the other apartments of its class, has an electric refrigeration system in each apartment. The rental includes refrigeration, gas and electric light.

The tendency is for the apartment management to take over every possible detail of the living regime, in a single transaction. A dweller in one of these New York apartments may make all his purchases of clothes, food and furniture under one roof; he may obtain recreation, exercise and even education without even crossing the street and the housewife requires expertness chiefly in pressing buttons. The pent house idea, along with the new sun and air barge, is sweeping the town and New York is climbing into the clouds as rapidly as its resources will permit. The pent-houses have terraces, many of them with gardens of exotic shrubs and flowers. Twenty or thirty stories in the air, they give a magnificent view of the Hudson and East rivers and in the upper price levels, probably constitute the most spectacular and luxurious living quarters in the world.

Both apartment and business buildings, shooting up overnight from one end of the island to another, are built on constantly shortening periods of obsolescence. On steel and on elevators there is no stinting, as safety considerations must come first, but as to other details there is concentration on quick returns, rather than permanency. Many of the tallest structures of New York, recently built and now building, are being put up on the basis of twenty year obsolescence. Several of the largest buildings of lower Broadway, built with the finest and most durable materials a few years ago, have been impracticable.

INCLUDE DEPRECIATION
The new law is to chalk up depreciation over a period of 20 years. The building must pay for itself in that time and be ready for the pock-ax, if necessary.

This does not mean that New York's new apartment and office buildings are dangerous or flimsy structures. It means that costs have been scaled down to the minimum of the desired beauty and utility and that the builders are merely catching step with the new economics, which reflects itself in the automobile industry by the annual turn-in, instead of five or six years' use of the same car.

Changes in financing and operating parallel the architectural revolution. In December, the New York real estate exchange, the first ever established, will be opened. Instead of bonds, which offer no chance for realization on increased values and which mature in ten or twenty years, the exchange will deal in real estate stocks. These will be convertible so the holder of preferred stock may take common and stand a chance to share some of the cream of increasing congestion and rising values. Big operators in Philadelphia and several other cities have bought seats and throughout the country leading real estate men are watching the enterprise closely with the idea of jumping in if it works. It is predicted here that the new exchange will lead the way to stock dealing in real estate all over the United States.

As a foot note to moving day, it is noted here that October 1, 2 and 3, as an annual distribution of about 100,000 among restaurants throughout the country, with way-makers making the break from old dwellings to new and with the whole family compelled to take its meals in restaurants.

EVERY TEASDALE BILL WAS KILLED IN LEGISLATURE

Yet Reform Senator from Sparta Introduced 21 Measures at Session

Madison — Senator Howard Teasdale of Sparta, veteran reformer, prohibitionist and foe of automobile petting parties, introduced twenty-one bills during the last session of the legislature and not one of them was enacted into law.

In fact, only one of the twenty-one bills presented by the well known legislator passed the senate, the house in which they originated. Nineteen were killed by the upper house and the other was withdrawn by Senator Teasdale after it had been recommended for killing by committee.

Senator Teasdale, who was chairman of the legislative vice committee in 1913, is one of the most colorful figures in Madison. An unceasing foe of liquor and petting parties, he is 74 years old, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin and was appointed district attorney of Monroe county by Gov. La Follette in 1901.

The bills which he introduced during the 1929 session include several perennials and range from taxation of public utilities to his famous biennial measure providing for the confiscation of automobiles used for immoral purposes.

CONSIDERED TOO DRASTIC
The defeat of the twenty-one Teasdale bills does not mean that the senate refuses to take seriously the bills introduced by the Sparta senator. It means that while the prohibition and morality bills are considered too drastic, a La Follette progressive legislator experiences great difficulty in getting La Follette progressive bills through a conservative senate.

In past sessions the Sparta senator has introduced bills to:

Make Jelly When Grapes Are Ripest — Not Green

There is a vast difference in the flavor of jelly made from ripe grapes instead of green or partially ripe grapes. Now it is just as easy to make Grape Jelly from grapes when they are at their best, and my, what a difference in taste and color! Just use Quixy with your ripe grape juice and you will be delighted with the results. Quixy is pure fruit pectin in powdered form — it will tell all fruit or berry juices and thicken jams quickly and surely. Follow this recipe:

RIPE GRAPE JELLY
Steam and crush ripe grapes to be used, barely cover with water and boil for ten minutes. Strain and place 4 cups juice in deep preserving kettle. Add 1 package Quixy, stirring constantly, and bring to brisk boil. Now add 4 cups of sugar and bring to vigorous boil and continue until jelly fully sheets from spoon (see Jelly Test). Pour into glasses and paraffin when cool.

Every package of Quixy contains proven recipes for making every kind of jelly and jam from all fruits and berry juices. You cannot have a failure with Quixy and the economy in sugar is most satisfactory. All grocers have Quixy — only 15 cents.

tor fared better. During one session he added almost fifty bills to the statutes of the state. But this was a long time ago.

Even when it is evident that one of his bills is to be overwhelmingly defeated by the senate, the Sparta legislator devotes as much time to it as though he expected the measure to reach the governor.

He attends every committee hearing at which his bills are considered and gives a lengthy argument on each. Similarly, when one of his bills is reached on the calendar of the senate, he speaks at considerable length, regardless of whether he is the only man supporting the measure.

This business of trying to make new laws is a very serious one with Senator Teasdale and he is undaunted by defeat. Among the famous Teasdale resolutions of the last session was the one directing "the prosecution of persons responsible for the orgies in connection with the Wisconsin road school."

STIMMONS TO GIVE "STAG" DINNER IN HONOR OF PREMIER

Washington — (AP) — The dinner which Secretary Stimmons will give in honor of Prime Minister MacDonald Oct. 9, will be a "stag" affair probably the only official entertainment at which the prime minister will be present while in Washington without his daughter Isabel.

The secretary desired to afford the British premier, an opportunity to meet American officials in a more informal manner than would be possible at other functions.

Mrs. Stimmons who recently came to Washington from the secretary's Long Island home, has been ill for some time and the "stag" affair will relieve her from the heavy burden which would accompany acting as hostess.

CHURCH APPEALS TO COLLEGIANS

So Says Rev. H. S. Gately, Who Believes Large Number Attend Services

That Christian churches are not slacking in their appeal to students of the nation was the opinion expressed by the Rev. H. S. Gately, All Saints' Episcopal church, before the student body of Lawrence college this morning. The speaker criticized recent statements in the press which indicated that less than 10 per cent of the student body of American colleges and universities are regular attendants of American churches.

"If only ten per cent of the students in Lawrence college attended church every Sunday," the Rev. Mr. Gately said "but 120 would be seen in Appleton churches. Yet other ministers have told me, and I have seen myself, that the actual number in attendance far exceeds this total."

This situation is duplicated in university cities, the speaker indicated.

SAYS GERMANY NOT GUILTY OF WAR SABOTAGE

New Evidence Apparently Clears Nation of 1916-17 U. S. Disasters

Washington.—(AP)—New evidence in the $40,000,000 sabotage claim against Germany, based upon alleged responsibility of German agents for the Black Tom and Kingsland, N. J., disasters of 1916 and 1917, shortly is to be laid before the mixed claims commission.

The evidence tells how Theodore Wasmak, who worked at the Kingsland foundry and had been widely sought for more than 15 years, appeared at the office of the German agent of the commission in Washington several weeks ago, admitted that the Kingsland fire started at his workbench, denied that he was in the service of Germany and told how he had lived in New York while the search for him was in progress.

Tender of the evidence, a mass of documents and papers, filling five volumes, produced in the commission a state of tension virtually unmatched in the history of the body. Immediately after it was offered, the American agent submitted objections to its admission. This move brought a reply from the German agent and now the commission must decide what parts if any of the new material is to be received.

The new evidence also purports to meet United States charges implicating directly two other alleged German agents—Kurt Jahnke, admitted head of the German secret service in this country during the war, who has now returned to his home and become a member of the Prussian diet; and Lothar Wetzke, the only German who ever was tried and convicted and sentenced to be hanged as a spy in the United States. His death penalty was commuted.

Germany's commission, Dr. Wilhelm Kieselbach, recently returned to Hamburg for a vacation. The United States member, Charles P. Anderson, is en route to Hamburg, and they are to meet there and consider the new material.

Dr. Karl von Levin, consul-general at New York and the German agent of the commission, has just sailed for Berlin. It is understood he will give a report on the case to his superiors in the government.

Reading like so many chapters from a war novel, the new evidence tells how a representative of the German agent received a telephone call from New York, to the effect that a man describing himself as Wasmak had appeared at the consulate there and declared his identity. He said he had read a new story of a hearing the commission held last winter and that he had remembered his own connections with it.

Far from being a German agent, the man said, he was a Russian sympathizer, the evidence explains and he wanted to tell his story to the proper authorities. Describing how civil authorities held him for questioning immediately after the Kingsland fire, he is quoted as saying he told them at the time that he was employed in the foundry and how he noticed the fire's beginning—a small flame that leaped from a machine at which he was at work, into a container of gasoline, spreading quickly thereafter until it destroyed the tremendous quantity of munitions held nearby.

Wasmak is said to have declared he never "disappeared," as the United States agent holds he did, after the first investigation. The German agent has produced hospital, army draft and court records in support of this statement. The United States contention is that Wasmak was seen during this period contravening with other known German spies in America.

Other records included in the new evidence purport to show that Jahnke—said by the United States to have set the Black Tom explosion in New Jersey across the harbor from Governor's Island, New York, signed a time sheet only two days earlier while working as a watchman at the Anglo-London and Paris National bank of San Francisco.

Of Wetzke, the evidence offers to show that he wrote from California, a letter to his parents, dated two days before the explosion, for which the American case holds him, with Jahnke and one Mike Kristoff, responsible. Kristoff died last year.

WOMAN CONVICTED OF POISONING HER 15-YEAR-OLD SON

Mrs. Hattie Stone, Guilty on Second Degree Charge, May Get 18 Years

Belair, Md.—(AP)—Mrs. Hattie Stone, 40-year-old widow, who during her four day trial for murder was painted by the state as a woman who would rather run around with men than to have her 15-year-old son George, early this morning was convicted of second degree murder for his death by a jury in circuit court.

With the announcement of the verdict, which carries a maximum sentence of 15 years in prison with the minimum left to the discretion of Judge Walter W. Preston who presided, Mrs. Stone who had sat stony faced and grim throughout the time the state was pressing its case, and who yesterday grew spiteful and showed her irritation under cross-examination while testifying in her own defense, broke down and wept.

Judge Preston reminded Harold E. Coburn, chief defense counsel, that he could file a plea for a new trial, adding that he would not pass sentence for eight or ten days. Coburn said he had not decided what course he would follow.

Mrs. Stone was arrested June 13, nine days after the death of her son, who died, according to testimony of a Baltimore chemist, from poison. Since that time she has been held in the Belair jail and was taken back there tonight to await sentence. The jury deliberated less

DR. WILSON WANTS MORE TEETH GIVEN FEDERAL DRY LAW

Portland, Ore.—Dr. Clarence True Wilson of the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal church, asserted in an address here last night that certain changes in the prohibition law were needed to make enforcement effective.

Addressing the Oregon conference of the church, Dr. Wilson said "the next amendment of the Volstead act must provide for the punishment of the buyer as well as the seller of liquor."

"The padlock feature of the Volstead act," he continued, "must be made mandatory for a second offense where a property used for bootlegging becomes a public nuisance."

Dr. Wilson suggested that young people be taught that alcohol is not good but a poison. "This leaves a great work for the public schools in teaching the evils of narcotics and intoxicants," he said.

than an hour following the close of arguments by attorneys for the state and defense and the court's charge.

During the trial witnesses, neighbors of the accused woman, trooped to the stand to tell of her "running around with men" and of her financial troubles. The state held part of the motive for the murder was her need of money. To be realized from insurance and a trust fund belonging to her son.

The most damaging testimony was given by Mrs. May Baker, sister-in-

MICKY WALKER SIGNS FOR ACE HUDKINS BOUT

Los Angeles.—(AP)—The middle-weight championship of the world was placed at stake today by Mickey Walker, who signed to meet Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska Wpctat, at Wrigley field here Oct. 29 in a ten round bout to a decision.

With the formalities of contract signing completed yesterday, the champion and contender announced plans for training activities to get under way at once.

The contract gives the usual 47 1-2 per cent of the net receipts to the defending champion. Hudkins will receive 12 1-2 per cent as his share. Jack Doyle, local promoter, and Ancil Hoffman of San Francisco, are staging the fight.

Walker will leave for Soper's ranch in the Ventura hills where he will start training. Hudkins will train at the Bastanchury ranch.

ASK POLICE TO LOOK FOR PAROLE VIOLATOR

Police here have been asked to search for Will Baker, 42, who violated a parole from the state prison at Waupun Sept. 5. Baker had been sentenced for forgery from Chippewa and after serving a part of his term was paroled but violated the parole by absconding. He is about five feet, ten inches tall, weighs 155 pounds, and by trade is a barber.

law and one time intimate of Mrs. Stone, who said George's mother had confessed the murder to her a few days after the youth's death. Mrs. Stone, testifying in her own behalf yesterday, stormily denied her guilt and the testimony of Mrs. Baker.

"Buddy" Minahan Is Reunited With Father

Tampa, Fla.—"Hello Pail" "Hello, Dad!" And thus were the Minahans, father and son, reunited here Thursday at the end of a 2,000-mile trail—adventuresome for the youngster, nerve wracking for his elder.

Hugh Minahan, deputy attorney general of Wisconsin, arrived from Milwaukee and went directly to a police detective office, where Buddy, 12, was pecking a letter on a typewriter.

Their greetings were vociferous, their embrace was hearty. They spent half an hour in a private office, where Buddy told his father all about the trip which led him north, to be turned back by a hard-hearted ferry captain in Michigan, then south to be picked up finally by Tampa police.

"Everything is all right," said Mr. Minahan after the reunion. "Buddy is going back with me. I can't blame him for leaving, because he loves his dog Snoop and the landlord wouldn't have the pet around."

"But it is little these lads know of the heartaches they sometimes give their parents."

Whereupon Buddy appeared a bit shamefaced for the first time. The pair will leave for Milwaukee on Friday.

KOHLER HAS WARM SPOT IN HEART FOR VIROQUA

Viroqua.—(AP)—Viroqua, and the memory of its prominent citizens plays a big part in the daily life of Governor Walter J. Kohler, he told those attending the Vernon county fair here Thursday.

"I think of Viroqua as the home of Wisconsin's great governor and our first United States Secretary of Agriculture, Jeremiah Rusk," he said. "As I sit at my desk in the executive office, his portrait faces me and he seems to look down upon me with an understanding and not unfriendly eye. The executive residence at Madison is also a constant reminder of him for it was his home before it was acquired by the state."

Talks To Parents

TASKS THAT TEACH
BY ALICE JUDSON PEALE

Every home can offer children the opportunity to do various small jobs and remunerate them.

There are, for instance, leaves to be raked, the yard to be tidied, trash to be carried out, dishes to be dried and errands to be run.

It is good for children to do work for which they are paid. Nothing else will so quickly teach them the value of money. But the tasks which a child undertakes should be carefully selected. They should be neither too long nor too difficult. They should be the sort of thing that he or she is really able to do well.

Discretion is necessary in determining what tasks should be compensated with money. When the child does some chore spontaneously he should never be paid for it. Such work is a gift and the only fitting kind of pay is love and appreciation. He should never be paid for work which he is compelled to do. Such work as is required of him should be regarded simply as his share in the work of the family and the home.

The conditions of all work which is done for pay in the adult world, ideally at least, are that both employer and employee should enter voluntarily into the agreement.

There should be a clear understanding of the amount and quality of work to be done with usually some stipulation as to when it must be completed. The agreement should be entered into in good faith with the understanding that the failure of either party to live up to his share of the bargain voids the contract.

These are also the conditions under which a child should do work for which he is paid. They will make clear the distinction between work done for love, work done as a duty and work done for money. It will be a realistic preparation for a whole-some attitude towards work in adult life.

PRICES CRASH WHEN REPORTS SHOW BIG INCREASE IN LOANS

High Priced Stocks Break 10 to 25 Points; Many Other Issues Down Also

BY STANLEY W. PRENSOIL
Associated Press Financial Editor
New York—(AP)—The stock market tumbled valiantly today to overcome the bearish influence of an unexpected large increase of $132,000,000 in Federal Reserve Bank loans, but the selling orders were so large that the market was swamped, and prices broke wide open. A score or more high priced stocks broke 10 to 25 points, while declines of 2 to 8 points were quite general throughout the list.

Call money renewed unchanged at 9 percent with indications that the rate would be maintained all day. Time money rates held firm at 9 to 9 1/4 percent. Wall Street was trying hard to determine the effects here of the raising of the Bank of England discount rate, some observers contending that the action already had been discounted and would have no effect on the credit situation here, while others feared that it would lead to a heavy withdrawal of foreign balances as a result of the action of other Central European banks in raising their bank rates in sympathy with London.

The market opened heavy but pool operators quickly supplied supporting orders and started bidding up special stocks in which favorable developments are believed to be pending. Standard Gas & Electric was marked up 24 points to a new high record at 243, and American Water Works 14 to a new high at 199, but when selling developed in the general list Standard Gas quickly slid back to 230 and American Water Works to 190. Butterfats Adding Machine, Underwood Elliott Fisher and Pacific Lighting also moved into new high ground in the early rally, but failed to maintain their gains.

Meanwhile, buying support apparently was being withdrawn from the high priced issues, and offerings of stock disclosed a thin market. Underwood Elliott Fisher, Columbia Gas & Electric, Allied Chemical 3-4, A. M. Byers, 13, Westinghouse Electric 11 5/8, Johns Manville 11 1/2, Simmons Co. and American Foreign Power 11 each, and General Electric 10 1/4.

Extreme declines of 5 to 10 points took place in such stocks as U. S. Steel Common, Columbia Gas, Republic Steel, Dupont, Commercial Investment Trust, Eastman Kodak, American Can, United Aircraft, Consolidated Gas, New York Central, Public Service of New Jersey, Houston Oil, Safeway Stores and Electric Auto Lite.

The absence of support in recent market leaders proved extremely discouraging to small traders and investors, many of whom threw their stocks overboard at the market. So great was the flood of offerings that the ticker fell more than 10 minutes behind the market. Wall Street was curious to learn the market operations of investment trusts, some of which were reported to be liquidating their holdings while others were reported to be accumulating special stocks on a scale down. The severity of the break impaired many margin accounts and brought considerable liquidation from that source.

Another forward movement was started in the western group of the utilities in the last hour and Standard Gas & Electric was lifted to 243 3/4, a new top. American Water Works returned to 198 1/2 and Southern California rose 4 and Pacific Lighting 6, also new highs, while Standard Gas advanced 12 1/2. The general list, after rallying, trended downward again in sympathy with another drop in U. S. Steel and Radio. The close was weak. Sales approximated 4,400,000 shares.

BIG DEMAND GIVES STRENGTH TO MART

Slightly Higher Prices Result from Good Buying at Chicago

Chicago—(AP)—Demand for hogs was broad enough from all sources to give the market a firm tone which resulted in slightly higher prices. No distinction was made during the fore part of the day between the various grades, but all classes of hogs that met with an outlet were 10c higher than the average of the previous day. Many loads of choice small weight offerings made $10.90, while medium weight butchers commanded $10.50. Packers had 3,400 hogs direct out of the estimated fresh run of 16,000, and there were 10,000 stale hogs carried over from the previous day.

Packers were not active in the cattle market, but they received 800 head direct and the balance of the supply on the open market consisted of the fair to medium steers that have been relatively plentiful this week. Opening trade though quiet and not extensive, was generally steady.

Less than 100,000 lambs arrived here so far this week showing a shrinkage of 14,000 as compared with the first five days of the preceding week. The percentage of feeders in the runs now arriving has been reduced from 25 percent in this quarter last year. Packers had more than 5,000 lambs direct and took no active part in the opening market, but steady prices were quoted for fat lambs.

Arrivals for the week thus far stand: 54,222 cattle, 122,793 hogs, 98,344 sheep against 69,334 cattle, 102,444 hogs, 112,888 sheep for the same time last week and 57,963 cattle, 110,754 hogs, 120,550 sheep for the corresponding period last year.

STOCK WEAKNESS SENDS PRICE OF WHEAT DOWNWARD

Big Decrease in Grain Exports Also Weakens Market at Chicago

BY JOHN P. BOUGHAN
Associated Press Market Editor
Chicago—(AP)—Influenced by a good deal by stock market weakness and by a halt in export demand for wheat from North America, wheat prices went down grade today. Especially in the late dealings, wheat showed activity that was at the expense of values. North American wheat export business today amounted to but 2,000,000 bushels, and from July 1 to date has been only 75,768,000 bushels compared with 126,012,000 bushels for the corresponding time last year.

In the wheat market today, some notice was taken here of announcements that a factor in causing more or less wheat weakness at Liverpool was failure of a cotton firm one of the partners in which is a member of the Chicago Board of Trade. Final quotations today on wheat at Liverpool, however, were relatively firm, and despite news of rains in Australia the market here displayed rallying power, helped by word of big flour sales at Minneapolis. There were also trade estimates indicating 13,000,000 bushels less wheat yield in the Canadian prairie provinces than according to official figures.

Buying here on the part of houses with connections northwest was largely responsible for renewed confidence displayed at times today regarding prices for wheat future deliveries. In various quarters, too, it was contended that wheat had approached a price level where Europe was apt to become interested, and that the market promised to become more settled, with a better foundation under it.

Profit-taking had a late depressing effect on corn values, but with buying against bids checking the break. Country offerings were not as large as yesterday. The forecast pointed to but little change in temperatures. Less pressure of Argentine corn was reported by Liverpool. Oats were easier sympathizing with other grain and on account of increased purchases to arrive from the country.

Provisions were somewhat firmer early on and buying for packers but the market eased later with grain.

BRADSTREET SEES BETTER BUSINESS

Wholesale, Retail, Mail Order and Chain Store Groups Increase

Chicago—(AP)—Bradstreet's Weekly Review of Chicago Trade says: Important features of the week were the increases in the wholesale, retail, mail order and chain store sales.

Wholesalers report that a large number of outside buyers were in the market.

A conference of retailers has been arranged by the Chicago Association of Commerce, in an effort to bring all interests together to assist in improving merchandising efforts.

Shoe manufacturers report that business in August and September is materially ahead of last year.

Clothing interests have had satisfactory sales for all lines.

A reduction in operating capacity of the steel industry continues. Buying for the third quarter, however, is liberal and fourth quarter orders are coming in at a good rate.

Sheet orders are coming in early and prospects are for a good business for the balance of the year.

Rail steel bars are in special demand, with mills working on four double turns. Orders for rails are between 200,000 and 300,000 tons and car orders are in the market for 15,000. Makers of metal beds and furniture are having an exceptional trade. Simmons Company report an immense increase in sales, having acquired control of the Berkeley and Gay Furniture company, which is estimated to enlarge their sales equal to about $10,000,000 annually. The Simmons Company is shipping 10,000 mattresses to the Pacific coast and its factories are at capacity.

Furniture trading in general is in full swing, according to a leading authority with sales exceeding last year's. The furniture business is furnishing a small order buying. Building workers are agitating the five day week and local interests are inclined to consider it favorable.

Fuel oil is having a good sale and the market is stronger with refiners accumulating supplies of both gas and fuel oils preparatory for a good business later. Borrowing of money is not as heavy as a year ago in the part of grain and packing interests, but other lines are in the market as usual at this period.

Collections average fair.

CURB IS NERVOUS AS LOAN INCREASE

Some Utilities and Specialties Gain Only to Drop Back Again

New York—(AP)—The Curb Market gave evidence of extreme nervousness today, with price trends erratic and confusing, generally toward lower levels. Pools bid up some of the utilities and specialties in violent fashion in an effort to stay the market in the face of bearish announcement of the $132,000,000 increase in brokers' loans, but encountered heavy selling pressure.

The Insult stocks were particularly erratic. Middle West Utilities old stock was hurled up 35 points to equal its peak at 565, but it then tumbled to 510, and again turned upward. The new stock fluctuated widely in sympathy. Insult Utility Investment jumped 10 points, but quickly lost its gain. Northern States A was another strong point for a time, rising to a new high ground above 300, then reacting. Standard Power and Light mounted 13 points on top of yesterday's gain of 12, but then slipped back.

Electric Bond and Share, American Superpower and United Corp. Warrents sagged a few points, and Commonwealth and Southern and Niagara Hudson eased to close to their lowest levels. # LEGISLATURE PUTS 530 NEW LAWS ON WISCONSIN STATUTES

Record Number of Resolutions and Bills Considered in Session

Madison—Two of every three bills introduced during 1929 session were rejected. Nevertheless the legislature added 530 new laws to the statutes of the state.

There were 856 bills introduced in the assembly and 510 in the senate during the period of almost nine months that the legislature was in session. The total number of bills, amendments and resolutions considered reached the amazing total of 3,498. This is far more than any previous session was called upon to receive.

REASON FOR LENGTH

One of the reasons that the 1929 session was the longest in the history of the state is found in the multitude of amendments and resolutions presented. While the number of bills introduced in 1929 exceeded by only twenty-four the number presented two years ago, the legislature which has just adjourned considered 700 more amendments and resolutions than any previous legislature.

The passage of the Grobshmidt bill to repeal the state prohibition law and to abolish the state prohibition department was one of the outstanding acts of the session.

It attracted more attention than any other act of the legislature and will have a great effect in removing the liquor issue as a factor in future state campaigns.

ORDER ELECTION INQUIRY

Enactment of the E. G. Smith bill for the establishment of a crippled children's code bill were two very important acts of the 1929 legislature.

Dog racing was legislated out of business by the passage of the Davies bill. A state budget department and a new highway commission were created by the two Goodland bills.

An investigation of campaign activities since 1924 was ordered by the passage of the Fellenz bill.

The Blanchard act changes the date of the primary election to the third Tuesday in September in even numbered years.

LABOR BILLS PASSED

Two bills vigorously supported by organized labor were added to the books. One is the Severson railroad bill and the other the act prohibiting the so-called "yellow-dog contracts" between employers and employees.

The old age pension act is another important piece of legislation.

The Michigan assessment bill was considered the most important act which the legislature passed in relation to the city of Milwaukee.

The traffic code act formulates a lengthy plan for regulating traffic on the state highways. In its closing days the legislature passed the Michigan bill providing for the erection of a state office building in Madison.

UTILITY TAX BOOSTED

From the maze of public utility taxation bills, the legislature finally passed one measure which increases the revenue the state will receive from public utilities. The Kruszak act, designed to prevent the democratic party from losing its place on the state election ballot, became a law.

An act was added to the statutes to restrict the kind and size of firecrackers that may be used and the places where they may be lighted.

The department of agriculture, the dairy and food commissioner and other associated boards were consolidated into one department by the D. V. Smith bill, which created a new department of agriculture and markets.

Twenty-three new sections were added to the statutes by the Slater bill, which provides an aeronautics and aircraft code for the state.

FINISH CONSTRUCTION

WORK ON HIGHWAY 12-13

The Garvey-Weyenberg Construction company, Monday completed the paving of 10.5 miles of road on Highways 12 and 13 between Kilbourn and Baraboo. The company now is grading an additional stretch of two miles, which will be completed the latter part of this week. When the work is completed, the gap between Kilbourn and Baraboo will be completely surfaced with concrete.

"Ill Health Was Dragging Me Down Fast"

"I Had Been Doctoring for Over A Year When I Learned About Dreco."

"I have the highest praise for Dreco. It relieved me of suffering when I was about ready to give up all hopes of ever getting well again. I was losing weight fast. My appetite had left me. My nerves were very bad and I was no longer able to get any rest at night. Oftentimes I would walk the floor at night trying to get some relief from indigestion. Gas used to press up around my heart that made it beat and thump like an old pump."

"Dreco soon scored in my case and soon I was taking on the weight I had lost. My stomach is lots better and I am at last able to get some rest at night. I am rapidly improving now and all this praise goes to the new medicine, Dreco." This statement was given by Mr. August Busch, 726 West Winnebago St., Appleton, Wis.

Saturday Is The Last Day Of This Sensational Sale Event! "Castle" Furniture Week

No store can purchase in the open market that inherent quality in "Castle" furniture that sets it apart—Such quality must be developed over a period of years—It is a product of integrity and time. True, many beautiful new styles have been created,—styles with rare individuality—yet, into every suite goes that one standard of excellence,—the important element of "Castle" construction. And now, at direct factory prices, you are offered buying opportunity without parallel.

Nine Points That Insure Fine Quality In "Castle" Furniture Even at Lowest Prices—

1. Only Genuine Mohair used. No sleazy blended mohair or imitations. Only Genuine Mohair.
2. Only moss, hair and cotton used in upholstering. No cheap materials, only the best moss, hair and cotton are used.
3. All cushions expertly built of fine cotton felt and oil tempered springs.
4. Italian Hemp used for tying. Far better than the Philippine Sisal many factories use! This seems like a small point but it adds years of wear to your furniture.
5. All springs are tied eight times instead of four. They'll last twice as long as ordinary springs.
6. Made by Master-Craftsmen who don't know how to do a job poorly. Conscientious workmen who take pride in building furniture.
7. All cushions are guaranteed against sagging. Few factories dare make this guarantee—it's a sure sign of reliable construction.
8. Every piece of furniture absolutely guaranteed because we know that it is of such quality that it will always please the customer.

VALLEY CONFERENCE GAME TO BE PLAYED AT WHITING FIELD

Coach Shields Pessimistic as He Prepares Team for First Battle

THE lid on the Fox River valley football season will be blown sky high Saturday afternoon when every team in the loop engages in a battle, conference or non-conference. Three league tussles are on the schedule with the two Green Bay teams meeting non-conference opponents.

Appleton high school will usher in the fall sport by battling Sheboygan high school out on Whiting athletic field in a game scheduled to begin at 2:30. The melee will be the second for the Chairs who last week lost to Two Rivers.

But the Orange are not looking forward to an easy victory in the opener despite the fact that the Chairs have been notoriously weak for several seasons. As a matter of fact the youngsters from down along the lake seem to have the edge in that they will boast a more experienced eleven and one which already has been under fire.

Coach Shields has had tough going this fall gathering together something to call a football team. He has a few veterans in the line and two or three in the backfield. But the new men in the line aren't the caliber of former linemen and there are no reserves for any of the positions.

Against Two Rivers last week the Chair captain, Kummer, looked prouder as did Greenstein and Jensen both quarterbacks. A freshman by the name of Davey also is expected to tear up the turf as a ball thrower. There are several other youngsters who performed well and when it is remarked Two Rivers beat Manitowish last fall perhaps the Orange can look forward to a hard afternoon.

Coach Shields has indicated he will start the veteran quarter and captain, Norbert Berg, in the backfield along with Holtermann, fullback, Mortell and Crane and Frank. The first two named halves probably will get first call.

Only one of the ball carriers is a recruit, Mortell, and if he is not injured will give an accounting of himself that probably will rank as one of the best looking youngsters ever to wear an Appleton uniform. He can throw passes and can receive them, is probably the best punter on the team and has plenty of defensive power. Crane again has shown the speed that made him one of the Orange's best ball players while Holtermann has a season's play to full back behind him. And Berg's field generalship and work need no commenting.

In the line Steenis, a recruit and Al Breittler are slated for the ends. The latter played on the squad last season as a tackle and should work well at end. Steenis will be under fire the first time.

Two more veteran players are booked for the tackle, Mindschimmo, a huge youngster weighing over 200 pounds and Winter. The latter is suffering from an attack of boils but probably will muster enough courage to strut his stuff anyway. The veteran Tubby Reetz is slated for guard along with Laird, a youngster who calls Ken Laird of the college team, his brother. Laird lacks experience but has grown into a hefty chap this summer after working with Ken and should perform well. Stark, a reserve center last season with plenty of nerve and short on size is to lead the pivot job.

Who the reserves will be in case they are needed is a question. Shields is hoping there won't be any need for reserves, at least not in the first game of the season so that he may find time in the next couple weeks to do some extra instructing while the regulars are drilling by themselves.

BASEBALL PAYS LAST TRIBUTE TO HUGGINS

New York Yankee Players
Act as Pallbearers at Funeral Friday

New York—(AP)—Metropolitan baseballers today paid their last tribute to Miller J. Huggins, "mike manager" of the New York Yankees, today. Funeral services for the Yankee chieftain who died on Wednesday, were arranged for 2 o'clock in the Church of Transfiguration, the "little church around the corner."

Hundreds of close friends, acquaintances and just "plain fans" passed by the mighty little baseball veterans bier in the mortuary chapel of the church.

Arthur Fletcher and Charles O'Leary, coaches, and Babe Ruth, Lou Gehrig, Tony Lazzari and Earle Combs, were selected as pallbearers. The Yankees American league game with Washington was postponed to allow the players to attend the funeral.

Huggins will rest beside his father and mother in Cincinnati. Final services are to be held in the First Presbyterian church, Cincinnati, Sunday afternoon.

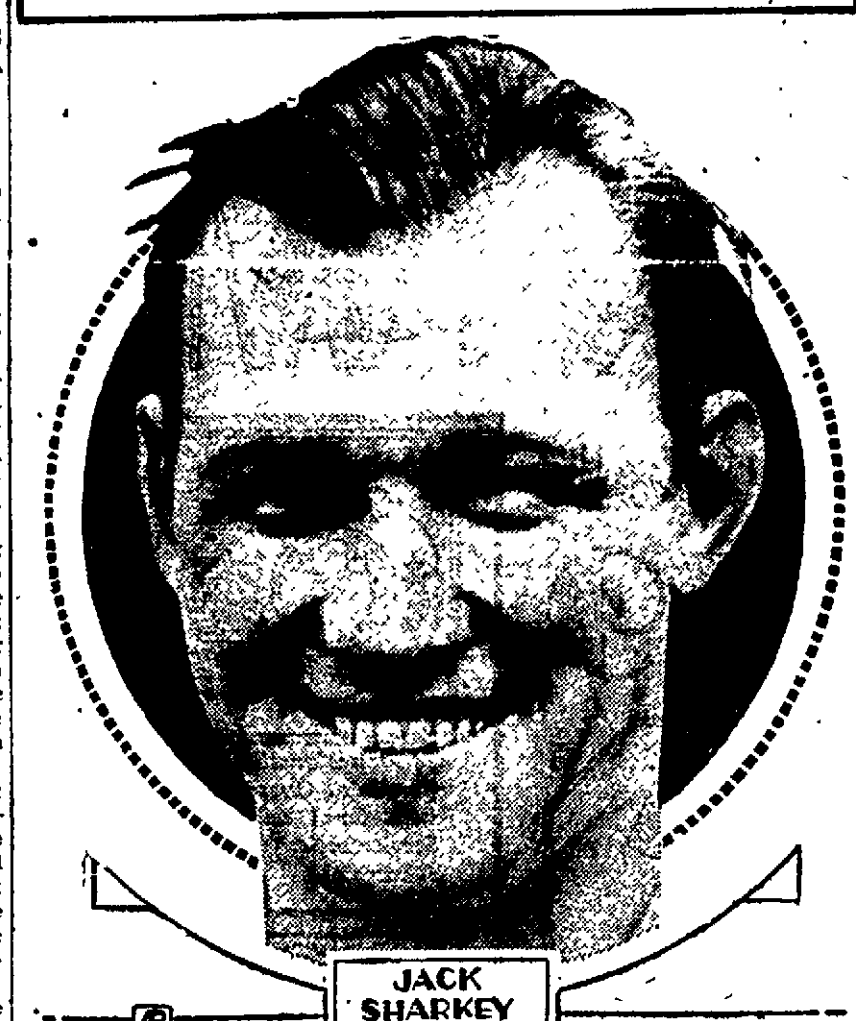

Members of the immediate family will accompany the body by train to Cincinnati as will Charles McManis, representing the Yankee club, Bob Connelly, an intimate of long standing and a committee from the New York chapter of the Baseball Writers Association of America.

Here's A Toast To The Souls Who Open The Holes

BY LAWRENCE PERRY
Copyright 1929

NEW YORK — He was a fine big, rangy, tow-headed sophomore who, in the weeks of preliminary practice, had been working his head off to win the line coach's eye as a leading candidate for a vacant tackle berth, one of the crucial defensive positions. And today the coach told him he was booked for that berth in the first game of the season on Saturday.

All the fundamental instruction that can be packed into a short career that big boy possesses. In the type of game played at his institution he is well versed, knows that on attack it is his duty to get and get good the first man likely to mess up the play. That man as a rule will be the defensive guard. Having done this, he will conduct himself as various plays demand.

Defensively he knows his cardinal precepts—the decisive charge without waiting to see where the attack is going; head and shoulders lunging; arms coming up powerfully from the ground, smashing up the play, whatever it is. Footwork, blocking, the use of hands—all these things have been drilled into him painstakingly. And on Saturday he will begin

BLUES REGISTER 109TH A. A. VICTORY

Veteran Dinty Gearin Gives Three Hits and Beats Millers 3 to 0

Chicago—(AP)—Although winning baseball games no longer is vital to the Kansas City Blues, the 1929 American association champions still have a chance to surpass the number of victories amassed by the 1923 Blues, who last provided Kansas City with a pennant.

By trimming Columbus, 6 to 4 yesterday, Dutch Zwilling's boys scored their one hundred ninth victory, and by winning their remaining four contests, can exceed by one, the record of 1923.

The defeat shook Columbus back into a tie for fourth place with Indianapolis.

Dinty Gearin, the venerable Milwaukee southpaw, cut loose with a three hit game to defeat Toledo, 3 to 2. Dennis kept the hits widely separated and his associates bunched most of their seven off Rabb in the sixth for all the Brewer runs.

St. Paul scored its one hundredth triumph of the season, defeating Louisville by 3 to 1.

Ex-Managers Tell How Huggins Came To Majors

BALTIMORE, Md.—(AP)—Miller Huggins' first two managers in his major league career told how he broke into the big game to rise until he became the leader of the greatest baseball combine in history. They are Joe Kelley and Ned Hanlon both of whom helped make the old Baltimore Orioles famous in the middle 90's and who still live here.

Kelley managed the Cincinnati Reds for four years, 1902 until 1905 and in the fall of 1902 Huggins came to him from the St. Paul club of the American association, which then was managed by Mike Kelley. Kelley, one of the "big four," the other three of whom were John McGraw, Willie Keeler and Hugh Jennings, of the famed Orioles, was succeeded as manager of the Cincinnati club in 1906 by Ned Hanlon. Hanlon piloted the Reds in that year and the next and then came to manage the Baltimore club, then of the Eastern league.

"Huggins came to us well recommended," Kelley recounted, "Mike Kelley, a friend of mine, was managing St. Paul and urged us to purchase Huggins. I think he cost the Reds $4,500. Before we closed the deal, however, we had a scout or two look him over, and the report of his ability was 'so good we lost no time in closing.'"

"It was only natural that Huggins, with his natural baseball ability, should fit into the Cincinnati machine of 1904. I was on first, when he came to the club, on second, Corcoran on short and Steinfield, later of the famous Cub machine, on third," Kelley recounted.

When Hanlon went to the Reds as manager, Kelley went to the outfield.

"The former pilot of the Yankees picked up the finer points of the game as quick as any man I ever saw," declared Hanlon, "and when I left Cincinnati it was with the feeling that he would be heard from later on in life. I have watched his career with a great deal of interest, and baseball has lost a great leader."

PHILADELPHIAN NO MATCH FOR VICIOUS, CHARGING SAILOR

Regains Rank as Most Likely
Candidate for Crown
Abandoned by Tunney

NEW YORK —(AP)—The jekyll and hyde of the heavyweights, Jack Sharkey, has put the big punch back in the picture, just as it seemed that there wasn't a man-sized wallop left in the ranks. The big Boston sailor exploded it last night without the slightest warning, to accomplish the downfall of Tommy Loughran, as-tonish a crowd of 45,000 spectators and restore himself to the top of the heavyweight brigade that has been battling so listlessly for the title left by Gene Tunney.

Sharkey, in the most convincing exhibition of speed and punching skill he has shown in more than two years knocked out the handsome Philadelphia boxing master in the third round of a 15-round match at the Yankee stadium. In less than seven minutes of actual fighting—after 27 seconds of the third round had elapsed—Sharkey's unexpected vicious attack crushed the heavy-weight hopes of the retired ruler of the 175-pound division.

Forcing the fight from the outset, Sharkey rushed Loughran to the ropes at the start of the third round, doubled him up with a left to the body, another left to the head and dropped the startled, wilting Philadelphia with a smashing right uppercut to the jaw. Loughran arose at the count of five, more from instinct than a neutral corner, his back to Sharkey as Referee Lou Macmona stepped in to renew the fight.

Unhesitatingly, Magnolia stopped the fight, for Loughran, though on his feet, was in a complete daze, his arms hanging and helpless. It was a technical knockout, for if ever a man was thoroughly "out on his feet," it was Tommy, "too dumb to fight," what had happened; that his dreams of sealing the heavyweight heights had been completely shattered.

It was the first knockout of Loughran's career, in fact the first defeat he has met in four years. He took on eleven more pounds to make his debut as a heavyweight last night but it did not do him any good. He was outclassed and out-punched by the bigger, stronger and more aggressive Sharkey. Even more startling was the way Loughran, who actually ended the fight a slight favorite, was outboxed during the brief "nod of the head" in the ring where the light heavyweight king had last defended his 175-pound title in a masterful exhibition just a few weeks ago. Noted as a slow starter, Loughran never had a chance to start.

Sharkey, an in-and-out'er ever since his first rush toward the top two years ago was abruptly checked by the big punch of Jack Dempsey, fought like a champion. Ever since he boxed the devastating figure, Sharkey has appeared to have a champion's equipment—speed, strength, craft and the wallop. He looked great when he beat Willis and Maloney, great for a round against Dempsey, but he was unimpressive later against Heeney, McTigue, Risko and Stribling, the nearest to his concentrated fighting fury of last night that he ever exhibited before was in knocking out Jack Delaney at Garden, but there has always been a tendency to "toss that one out."

SHARKEY IMPROVED
In polishing off Loughran, Sharkey whipped with remarkable ease the boxer who had been picked by many to succeed Tunney and by most critics at least as "the man to beat" before any new king of the heavyweights is crowned. As a result Sharkey undoubtedly will star in the next and perhaps final heavyweight fight slated for Miami, with Max Schmeling, the outstanding German, as his probable foe, unless the Englishman, Phil Scott, has a reply to the challenge he made to the winner last night.

The Sharkey of last night was a far cry from the cautious counter-puncher who scored a close decision over Stribling at Miami Beach seven months ago. Somewhere the Bostoner had recovered the fighting spark he was the old, snarling, vicious Sharkey. In superb condition at 190 pounds and completely confident, he took the "boos" from the crowd as though he enjoyed it. A few moments later he was taking Loughran's light jabs just as carelessly and leaping into his foe.

Only two real blows were landed in the first round of sparring, but both were by Sharkey, a left to the body and a hard right to the head. In the second round, the sailor took complete command, astonishing the crowd as well as the experts by the ease with which he outboxed the clever Philadelphia, punishing him with well-timed blows to the head and body. The third round and Loughran's finish, after a sharp but decisive flurry along the ropes, came so quickly that the biggest crowd of the outdoor season was almost as dazed as Tommy when he wobbled to his feet, knock-drunk, after the one and only knockdown of the bout.

MARTY BERGERINO IS SECOND AT FIGHTS

Appleton baseball fans who saw the first amateur bouts promoted by Oney Johnston post of the American legion Thursday night at Armory G probably recognized a familiar face on one of the seconds back of the Italian boys from Milwaukee who appeared on the bill. The visitor was none other than Marty Bergerino who used to perform at third base for Appleton and other clubs in the old state league. He still lives in Milwaukee but plays comparatively little ball now. Marty runs a restaurant in his spare moments.

FORMER APPLETON GRIDDERS PLAYING WITH ELMHURST

Swede Johnson, Getschow,
Cookson on Illinois College
Eleven

Two former Appleton high school football players will be among the eight football players of the high school athletes in the starting lineup of the Elmhurst, Ill., college football team when it plays the Whitewater Normal eleven at Whitewater Saturday. "Swede" Johnson, former high school star fullback, will play the same position on the college eleven, while Rube Getschow will play in the hole at center on the offense, and tackle on the defense.

Besides these two, six other former Wisconsin high school stars will play for the Illinois college against the Normalites. They are Frank Cookson, who attended Appleton high for one year before going to Fond du Lac, and then to Wayland academy; "Tiny" Roberts, another former Wayland academy player, Merle Froelich, a member of Joe Shute's Varsity high school team in 1925, and a fresh at Lawrence last year, Ralph Curtis of Sauk City, Wilbur Peters of Randolph, and Harold Bloom, former Beaver Dam high school star lineman.

Despite the almost all-star cast on the Elmhurst team, chances for a victory over the Normalites are none too bright, according to "Mourful Mac" McFarland's prediction. McFarland was formerly athletic coach at Wayland Academy, and is assisted at Elmhurst by Loyd Ollman, formerly of Shawano; Lack of intercollegiate playing on the part of most of the team's members, and a number of injuries to squad members have taken most of the confidence out of the Elmhurst outfit.

LITTLE CHUTE GRIDDERS TO OPEN WITH SHAWANO

Little Chute—The Flying Dutchmen football team of this village will meet the Shawano team in the first league game of the season at Little Chute Sunday afternoon, Sept. 23. The game will start at 2:30 and will be played at the municipal ball park. The local lineup will be: Raymond Alois, Nicholas Langedyk, T. Reetz, Viola Weyenberg, P. De Bruin and B. Wolgram, end; John Strick, Milor Schaefer, Victor Hartjes and J. Beck, tackles; Joseph Wildenberg, Henry VerHoven, George Jansen, Glasteen and McCaskey, guards; Sylvester Jansen, center; Gregory Hartjes, Raymond De Bruin; Arthur Wildenberg, George Vander Loop and John Verkulien, halfbacks; Willard Van Handel and Gerald Versteegen, quarterbacks; Helble and Leo Versteegen, fullbacks.

GEORGE HILL LOSES MAT BOUT TO M'ILLLEN

Davenport, Ia.—(AP)—Jim McMillen, former University of Illinois football star, defeated George Hill, Appleton, lumberjack, in two out of three falls in a wrestling match here last night.

Hans Bauer, Milwaukee, threw Farmer Bill Nelson of Louisville, Ky., in 15 minutes in a one fall match.

Baseball Schedules Won't Be Changed Much For 1930

BY JOHN B. FOSTER
Copyright 1929
NEW YORK—Both major baseball leagues are satisfied with the way in which the 1929 schedule was arranged and the 1930 schedule, therefore, is likely to be arranged along the same lines.

There is a lot of dissatisfaction among players at the way in which some managers ignored the special open dates that were set aside at the beginning of the season for the purpose of playing off postponed games. However, there is general satisfaction over the schedule, so that the leagues will swing into action next April 15 and wind up with the world series during the first two weeks of October. The first world series game will probably be played on Oct. 1.

The playing program of 1929 was arranged so that it would be necessary to have any artificial doubleheaders unless the weather were very bad. Plenty of open dates were provided on which to play postponed games. That came about because of the criticism of the 1928 schedule, which was probably the worst ever set. It ended, the fans will recall, with four doubleheaders in four successive days at Boston in September when the Giants and Boston had to play off their postponed games.

However, this year, with plenty of

Two Knockouts On First Amateur Card Staged By Oney Johnston Legionaires

Windup Is Won by Windy
Thomas, New London,
Miller Beats Curro

Oney Johnston post of the American legion has staged its first amateur fight program and the fans who paid their dollar and fifty cents are satisfied—or at least they should be.

For they saw everything that can happen on a fight program. They saw a 45 second knockout, they saw a regular longshoreman brawl, they saw a slugging beat a boxer, they saw blood spilled and they saw plenty of action, with last but not least a bit of waiting.

There wasn't so large a crowd but what it could have been larger, but then that should not deter the veterans from starting plans for the next program. When the word about Thursday's fights got out among the fans they flock to the next program for there was enough action in the first couple bouts to pay for the dollar handed in at the door.

Two of the bouts were knockouts while the remainder went the limit, one going to a draw in the regular period with an extra round necessary before the verdict could be given.

The windup bout was between Windy Thomas of New London and Ralph Minervina, a youngster from down in the ward at Milwaukee. Thomas, who is just a high school youngster, received the nod after dazzling the fans with the speed in which he let drive his blows.

In the first round the New London youngster took things comparatively easy, feeling out his opponent with a few lightening jabs to make it interesting. He opened up in the second round getting in a couple rapier like blows and finally floored his Italian opponent with a left to the jaw. Minervina took a count of nine before arising although he might have regained his feet sooner.

The third round also went to Thomas although he failed to get in as many damaging wallops as in the second stanza. Once or twice he had his opponent on the ropes but the Milwaukee youth showed his knowledge of the game by weathering the storm and getting in a few licks himself. The decision easily went to Thomas who with a little more aggressiveness might have scored a more decisive win.

MILLER IS WINNER.
Chief Miller, Neenah, and another Italian youngster, Frank Curro, Milwaukee featured the semi and they also put up a slam bang battle that had the crowd on edge throughout.

The Chief won his victory with a driving finish in the third round, the result of his apparent better condition.

The opening round found the two boys taking plenty of blows and getting in plenty. Curro had a habit of dashing off the ropes only to run into a couple of solid pokes by the Neenah Indian who also absorbed several of Curro's round house wallops.

Miller started to pile up a slight advantage in the second round as he learned Curro's style and in the closing seconds registered with a couple hefty lefts to Curro's jaw. They started slamming away in the third round but Curro tired and had a tough time weathering the storm. They opened by standing toe to toe and swinging but after a clinch the Chief worked his man up against the ropes punishing him with rights and lefts.

Freddie Bush, Sheboygan, under the tutelage of his big brother, John Bush, a professional fighter, won the evening's fourth bout, a knockout. His opponent was Howard Munson of Fond du Lac who if he had elected to box probably would have gone the three rounds. However, Munson elected to trade blows and took a seven count in the first round finally going out completely in the second from a left to the jaw.

Munson showed himself a clever boxer during the early part of the first stanza, shifty and feinting like a veteran. But as Bush closed in and baited him into trading punches at close range, the Fond du Lac boy laid himself wide open to lefts which finally ended the battle.

THIS WAS A BRAWL.
The evening's third bout went four rounds and had the fans on the edge of the seats all the time. The principals were Eddie Frake, Neenah, a long armed hard punching chap and Eddie Franzen, Fond du Lac, short and chunky and also a hitter. They started the milling by standing in the middle of the ring flailing away at each other as fast as their arms could moved until it was apparent that one or the other was going to tire and lose.

But when the second round opened they again resumed their toe to toe slugging, Franzen registering with straight lefts and Frake getting in a couple solid pokes with both left and right. The Neenah youth's reach was serving him well when ever he would stand away from Franzen, but he was wide open to a straight left. Franzen used the blow to advantage numerous times but then would forget about it to resume trading wallops.

The third round was slower than the first two, for it was impossible to keep up the pace. However, the boys would dash into the longslong man's tactics every so often and when the regulation period was over the judges disagreed and the battle went into the fourth round. Franzen then tired and when he ran into a hard right to the jaw went down for part of a count. He was all in after that and hung on to weather the round, the bout going to Franzen because of his better condition and stamina.

Another Sheboygan youth and another Fondy youngster were on the second bout and they staged a write for two rounds. Al Meyers, Sheboygan finally piling up enough points in the third frame to give him the decision. Meyers did the leading whenever there was any fighting, while Zimmerman seemed content to stand back and wait for a chance to bring an upper cut from off the floor. He never got the chance, however, and a fast finish enabled Meyers to take home the bacon. Meyers also is under the tutelage of Johnnie Bush.

45 SECOND K. O.
The curtain raiser between White Driessen, Little Chute and Carl Babbitt, Neenah, didn't last long, the latter winning by a knockout in 45 seconds. Driessen appeared stage struck and when, knocked down shortly after the opening going immediately got to his feet without stopping to figure out what it was all about. He repeated the trick when floored the second time and was an easy victim for Babbitt who rushed in and swarmed all over the youngster.

Someone was kind to promoters of the fight when they sent Walter Houlehen, veteran referee up here to handle the bouts. Houlehen probably is one of the best known referees in the state and middle west and handled the fights to the satisfaction of everyone. As a matter of fact the entire evening's program was run off without a hitch and decisions of the two judges, Clarence H. Rasmussen, Lawrence college and Dr. D. J. O'Connor were well received by the crowd. Joseph R. Shields, high school athletic director took the part of the famous Joe Humphries and was official announcer, the timer being Robert English, Lawrence college boxer.

Doubleheaders are risky business when a team is trying to win a pennant. Aside from the danger of tiring players and dampening their enthusiasm, the results are seldom satisfactory. Two times out of three, the teams lost out. If they lose, they drop two whole games. If they split even on the series it is two games wasted.

The question of weather in the world series is a lottery. Frequently the weather is better on Oct. 13 than it is on the first of the month at Pittsburgh and Washington of recent years, the early October weather was abominable. There was much better weather a week after the series was over.

As a matter of fact it is all guessing when the weather factor is considered, except possibly that better weather may be expected as a general rule in the southern cities.

One time the Giants and Athletics did not play the last game of the world series until Oct. 26. They were tied up with seven continuous days of rain.

VETERAN LAWRENCE TEAM HOPES IT CAN AVENGE 1928 DEFEAT

May Play Under Wraps Because of Presence of M. U. Scouts

LAWRENCE college Vikings and their great Dane leader will embark Saturday for Oshkosh where they are scheduled to open the 1929 football season amidst the remains and ruins of the season's Winnago-co fair. The game is scheduled to begin comparatively early, according to reports, the time having been set for 2 o'clock.

It will be an avengeful gang of Vikings that troop to Oshkosh all because of a fumble last fall which resulted in the Teachers winning a game up here on Whiting field. The Vikings entertain hopes of showing the teachers that victory was a break in all sense of the word and are easy to do some rough riding.

The 1929 edition of the Vikings will be an improvement over last season's team and before the afternoon is over there may be plenty to write home about. The small line that upheld Lawrence colors last season has changed to a bunch of husky bruisers and there is much more football knowledge all way round.

However, the Vikings won't be showing all they know Saturday for in all probability scouts from Marquette will be conspicuous by their presence. The Vikings meet M. U. next week and the Marquette won't miss a chance to scout Saturday.

There appears to be one weakness in the Viking squad—there is no quarterback to take the place left vacant by Franny Bloomer and who can fill the job as well as the chunky little Appleton youth did. But Coach Rasmussen is a tolerant soul and whoever he puts in at the signal position will have plenty of opportunity to show his worth.

The Teachers are reputed to have a strong eleven this fall despite a lot of wailing that came from the Saw Dust city when practice first started. The team is under direct supervision of Bob Kolp this fall and he entertains high hopes of humbling the Vikings.

Capt. G. B. Mitchell and Ken Laird will be Rasmussen's choice for ends with Bill Pickett and Schneider at tackles. The men all are veterans, have added more weight and matured to a point where they look like the class of the conference.

At guard there will be Tiny Krohn and Carl Voecks, two more veterans who can hold their own with anyone. Paul Miller, a new man to Lawrence fans but a seasoned footballer in the Rasmussen style of play and one time candidate for center on the U. W. team will be at the pivot post.

In the backfield Frankie Rasmussen, Russus and Fischl probably will get first call. They all are veterans, have added more weight and matured to a point where they look like the class of the conference. There also are plenty of reserves for the line and for the backfield and no doubt most every man will get a chance to work. Razz must find what his men will do under fire so he can easily pick his most likely candidates for posts in the Marquette game next week.

GEORGE EARNSHAW WINS 23RD VICTORY

Dizzy Vance Fails to Go Route and Phillies Beat Brooklyn 12 and 2

With the baseball world still mourning the death of Miller Jerome Huggins, action along the major league front again was more or less perfunctory yesterday in the two decisions reached in each circuit. A fifth game, involving the White Sox and the Indians at Cleveland, was postponed on account of rain.

Going into battle for the first time since 1917 under leadership other than that of Miller Huggins, the Yankees pounded out a 10 to 3 victory over the Senators at Washington, and entrained early in the evening for New York to attend the funeral of their deceased pilot.

The champion Athletics had little difficulty in turning back the Red Sox in Boston by 5 to 3, far less than the score might indicate. George Earnshaw gave up just four hits in six innings, earning his twenty-third victory, and then gave way to Rube Walberg.

The game was practically decided

BADGERS TO HAVE LAST PRACTICE TODAY

Five Members of Squad Plugging to Pass Conditional Examinations

Madison—(P)—The University of Wisconsin varsity football squad was to go through last exercise today in the final practice session before the season's opener Saturday, a double-header with South Dakota State and Ripon as guests.

At the same time, five men were plugging for condition examinations to be held Saturday afternoon. If they survive the examinations they will be eligible to play.

Whitely Keteleer, veteran tackle, headed the group for the examinations, facing a test in a five-credit course. "Buck" Halperin, promising fullback prospect, was another, while Nelson, quarterback; Neupert, fullback, and Witte, tackle, were others who must pass examinations to be eligible for play.

Freshmen were used in varsity practices for the first time this fall Thursday night, when Coach Glenn Thistlethwaite put his eleven through tackling practice. With yearling backs carrying the ball, the Badger varsity bore down on them and tackled.

Daily, emphatic demonstration was the second Thursday feature, the eleven even ending the day with a long dummy scrimmage with pass offense and defense emphasized.

In the doubleheaders Saturday, South Dakota will be the first opponent. The game starts at 1:30 P. M., and Ripon will follow.

In the first inning when Al Simmons hit his thirty-second home run with two mates aboard.

Dizzy Vance once more failed to go the route, and Philadelphia won its fourth straight from the Robins by 12 to 3. Lester Sweetland was the winning pitcher. The victory lifted the Phillies over the Robins and into fifth place by a margin of half a game.

Selph's single in the ninth drove home the winning run for St. Louis in a 2 to 1 victory over Pittsburgh.

IMPORTANT YOUR CAR SHOULD BE PREPARED FOR WINTER DRIVING

FOLLOW THESE PRECAUTIONS

- 1 Use a free-flowing winter grade of oil in the crankcase. Be sure that the differential and transmission have proper cold-weather lubricants.
- 2 Have spark plugs, ignition cables and battery inspected. Cold gasoline needs a hot spark.
- 3 Inspect the fan, thermostat and winter front.
- 4 Clean the cooling system. See that all old scale and rust, accumulated over a summer's driving, are thoroughly flushed out.
- 5 Be sure the cooling system is tight, without the slightest leak anywhere—in hose connections, pump, radiator or gaskets.
- 6 Add water and one supply of Eveready Prestone and your car will go through the hardest winter season in perfect safety.
- 7 Go to your garageman. For a small sum he will be glad to render this cleaning and tightening service. It is an investment worth many times its small cost.

Eveready Prestone, the perfect anti-freeze, does not contain alcohol or glycerine. It will not overheat the motor if the weather turns warm. It is a pure, undiluted product. Its permanent protection makes it a most economical investment. One supply lasts all winter, through any amount of warm and cold weather driving.

Heenan bet $10 on Paul Revere across the board—$10 to win, $10 to finish second and $10 to finish third. Paul Revere won, so the gray-headed janitor won all his bets besides the $90 purse. The grand total was $2,611.80.

MARLING SEES A GHOST
S EVEN men sat staring at Pell, who was standing with his back to the library door. Mr. Fotherbury's voice came like a breath of sanity in an insane situation. "My dear Pell, what extraordinary conduct!" "A little unusual, perhaps," Mr. Fotherbury said, "but you'll soon be enlightened, and then I shall ask you to admit that it is justified." Mr. Fotherbury lifted his hands, as if to signify that he gave it up, and sat down alongside Marling. "I'm here," Pell went on, "to defend myself against a gang of scoundrel-mongers and to perform an act of heroism." And then what I expected happened. Seabroke went off with a bang; he thundered up, and his beard stuck out so menacing, that I thought for a moment he was going to charge into Pell. Pell's features relaxed for an instant into a rather alarming smile. "Be quiet, little man!" he said, pointing a finger at Seabroke. "Go and sit down and behave, or I'll tell your wife, I'm in command here." Pell looked slowly around as putting the fear of God into a disorderly class. "Mr. Fotherbury," said he, "you have in your library a collection of human curiosities representing some of the most undesirable traits of the race. I will describe them—" "My dear Pell," Mr. Fotherbury interrupted him, "is it necessary?" "I'm afraid it's very necessary," said Pell. "I'll begin with Seabroke. . . . Sit down, Seabroke, will you? You hate me. You slander me. Why? Because I interfere with your disgusting plans for exploiting your daughter and breaking her heart. Seabroke, I describe you as a cad, a snob, a cupidinous schemer, and a bad father." Seabroke, in the effort to restrain himself, looked ghastly. "He might have been on the verge of a fit. But Pell looked steadily at him till he subsided. Pell spoke again: "And if Mr. Royle will stay where he is and refrain from interruption it will be all the better." I turned to look at Royle. He was fuming. Somerfield's hand gripped his arm. "If I had followed the momentary impulse to say, 'Come on, Royle, we'll both go' — the course of life for all the people involved would have been altered. But at that moment I caught a glimpse of the ghastly face of Marling, staring at Pell with an expression of horror and fear such as I hope never to see on any other man's face. "I should be sorry for anybody to leave," Pell was saying. "Even Mr. Crenofen, who's a wayfarer here by mere chance. I have nothing to say about him. Mr. Fotherbury, nor about Mr. Royle and Mr. Somerfield. So I come to the doctor. The doctor's a silly kind of cholerick man, a credulous man, a bit of a snob like Seabroke, small-minded and self-important — who can be led by the nose into any grotesque folly by a man of stronger intellect. I remind him that a man who spreads slander about another man is liable to legal process, and that the courts often give thumping damages. So much for him. "The doctor's men during this attack was entirely surprising and out of character. He sat lunched up, with his eyes fixed on Marling, as though he had not even heard what Pell said. Marling's expression of agony became almost intolerable to see when Pell fastened upon him. "But, Mr. Fotherbury, what about the living lie who sits beside you? He looks as if he'd seen a ghost! Ah . . . a ghost, Marling! You're going to see a ghost, anyhow. I'll tell you a little of the dreadful psychic experiences of Marling, Mr. Fotherbury. When I came down to Newplace, he thought he saw a ghost, but he was not quite sure. He had seen me only once before. "The horrid truth forced itself on him by degrees. He began to try to get me out of the way by telling lies about me. He cockered up a lurid tale about my past to narrate to anybody who might be of service to me in an emergency — to Royle and Somerfield, and, I expect, even to Grenofen. "And what was the cause of Marling's conduct? Would you believe it, Marling had seen a ghost! And if one ghost, why not another, a still more terrible and formidable specter?" Pell looked at each of us in turn, a crescent of astounded faces. "You don't believe in ghosts? I see you don't. Only Marling — he does." Pell raised his left arm to look at his watch. "Mr. Fotherbury," said he, "it is now a minute to four. At four a ghost will walk. Marling will see him, and I will introduce him to you." Marling emitted a sound like a woman's sob. Pell stood with his arm raised looking at the watch on his wrist. "A veritable perfectly authenticated ghost!" said he. "Perfectly harmless to some of us, but perfectly terrible to others. The guilty conscience — what a thing it is!" Pell was motionless, gazing at the watch as it ticked off unendurable seconds. At last! Pell dropped his arm to his side. "Now," said he. He took three strides to the door, all of us watching him intently, raised his hand to the top bolt and wriggled it back with a clatter. He stopped to reach the bottom bolt. But he never reached it. A deafening explosion and the collapse of Pell inert upon the flagstones happened simultaneously. The place for an instant seemed full of ghastly silence — and the next of the voice of Mr. Fotherbury, who, crying "Pell!" rushed across the room, and stood looking down on him. Then I found myself in a circle of shaking men also looking down on Pell. He was crumpled. His face pressed on the floor and into the angle of the door. A little red trickle crept along the stones. (Copyright, 1929, Wm. Morrow Co.) Seven men in the room saw Pell murdered. Who is guilty? Continue the story with tomorrow's installment.

LITTLE GRIDDERS OPEN HOME SEASON WITH W. GREEN BAY

Game at Kaukauna Ball Park Will Start at 2:30 Saturday Afternoon

Kaukauna—Coach Paul E. Little's Kaukauna high school football team will play its first home game of the season at 2:30 Saturday afternoon at the ball park against West Green Bay. The team has displayed remarkable improvement since its disastrous game last Saturday at Antigo which it lost 37 to 0. The squad was given a lot of work at blocking and tackling the dummy and is better prepared than it was last week. The team, which was practically new last week, has the benefit of actual play now.

Gridiron relations with West Green Bay were renewed this year after a lapse of two years. Green Bay has always defeated the Orange and Black but the games were close and interesting. The Bays are in the Fox River Valley league and is the only team in that league which the locals play this fall.

A large number of the boys were used against Antigo so Coach Little will not lack material. Several regulars are unable to be out for practice on account of minor bruises. The most serious injury is a broken nose suffered by Edward Misilinski Wednesday afternoon. Two regulars, Minkbeig and Collins, linemen, will be unable to play Saturday on account of injuries.

The starting lineup will probably include Farwell and Nole, ends; Van-evenhoven and VanDyke, tackles; Arps and Jirikovic, guards; Van Leshout, center; Schwendeman and Bay, half backs; Grogan, quarterback; and McCormick, fullback.

3 MEN SOUGHT AS SLAYERS IN BANK ROBBERY

Constable Killed and Bandit Wounded—Trio Escapes With $35,000

San Francisco—(P)—Three men thought to be members of the notorious Fleagle gang of outlaws, were being sought throughout California today for the slaying of a constable in holding up a bank at Rodeo, east of here, yesterday.

The bandits escaped with $35,000 after mortally wounding Constable Arthur J. McDonald, who chased to stroll into the bank during the hold-up, McDonald was ordered to put up his hands but he shot instead, wounding one of the bandits, possibly fatally.

Witnesses of the robbery, when shown police photographs of Jake Fleagle, leader of the desperate band which last year robbed the Bank of Lamar, Colo., of more than $200,000 and killed four men, said he was one of the trio, Joe Miller, a lieutenant of the Fleagle band, was similarly identified as the second bandit. The third was not recognized.

Fleagle was believed to have been the one wounded by McDonald. He was dragged into the getaway car by his companions and they escaped, leaving a trail of blood. Police believed the wounded robber had been so badly hurt that he would die. A close check was kept upon hospitals in the bay area.

The robbery occurred 15 minutes after an armored car had delivered a $27,000 payroll. Fleagle and Miller are said to have entered the bank while the third robber sat at the wheel of a light touring car outside. One of the two covered employees while the other forced A. D. Dern, the three. McDonald directed the fire at the robber with the money sack and the latter sank to the floor with a bullet in his stomach. A moment later McDonald fell, fatally wounded. The wounded bandit staggered to his feet and under the protection of the others' gun made his way to the car where he collapsed. His accomplices followed and after dragging the wounded man into the tonneau, sped a way into the Contra hills.

A sub-machine gun, which one of the three dropped, was found in front of the bank. Fingerprints taken from the gun and the abandoned car were expected finally to determine whether two of the men really were Fleagle and Miller.

Sheriff R. R. Veal of Contra Costa, expressed belief that the three were the same bandits who held up a Southern Pacific passenger train at McAvoy, Calif., five weeks ago and escaped with a $18,000 payroll after wounding the engineer.

Three of the Fleagle gang, indicted for the Lamar, Colo. robbery, are scheduled to go to trial in that state Monday.

RUSS AIRMEN STILL AWAIT GOOD WEATHER

Seattle—(P)—Prevented by heavy storms from taking off for Seward, Alaska, the Russian plane "Land of the Soviets," remained at Dutch Harbor, Unalaska island, today awaiting a lull in the weather to continue to the Alaska Mainland, a distance of 700 miles.

The plane landed in a storm at Dutch Harbor Tuesday after a hazardous flight from Attu, most westward of the Aleutian islands, it is on its way from Moscow to New York.

The plane was refueled soon after its arrival at Dutch Harbor and only forbidding weather has kept it from proceeding to Seward.

At the left are reproductions of four telegrams sent by FWD users in answer to requests regarding the operation of their equipment in snow removal. Look them over; they come from men who say what they think.

These telegrams are in keeping with a letter received from the Missouri State Highway Department which reads: "We are pleased to inform you that we used your FWD trucks equipped with "V" plows, in removing snow from highways the first week in January and were delighted with the excellent results obtained. Ordinary drifts were broken with comparative ease, and in one case, a ten-foot drift was broken by rapid lunging. This was accomplished without the use of skid chains. Our plows ran continuously from 5 p. m., December 31 to 10 a. m. January 5."

If Your Figure Needs the Utmost in Control

We recommend that you wear a Corsette* with an inner belt. The model that we show here is extremely popular, on account of its exceptional value, and perfect fit. Large figures can appear much more youthful — the feminine modes of today are kind to the woman who has a figure, but, the curves must be perfectly controlled!

MODELS FOR ALL TYPES

The inner belt featured in this Corsette*, is a continuation of the elastic hip sections — it supports and controls excess flesh at diaphragm and abdomen, and the long lines of the outer garment smooth the silhouette down to lovely lines. The garment is well boned, and made of an attractive rayon patterned novelty cloth. There are detachable shoulder straps. Note the opening, part way under the arm, to assure a smooth bust line.
